British Warned To Stand Firm; Battle Inflation

Attlee Warns Country to Meet Pound Cut Crisis With Sacrifices

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee called on the British people today to stand firmly against a wave of inflation under the cheapened pound.

The people of Britain, he said, must meet "the challenge of the times" with new sacrifices; business and industry must hold the line on prices and the worker must produce more without demanding higher wages.

If they weaken, Attlee warned, higher prices which follow would "defeat the whole object which we have in view"—to sell more to the dollar nations and put Britain on her feet in world trade.

Although the Labor Government chief admitted there would be some inevitable increase in the cost of living because of the cut in the value of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80, he declared "there is no occasion for a general price increase."

The Prime Minister's speech at a political rally in Llandudno, Wales, was the big gun signalling a week of decision for the party that has run the Government since 1945.

Less than an hour after he spoke, Lord Woolton, chief architect of the political strategy of the Conservatives, appealed to the Liberal Party to join Winston Churchill and his Tories in a drive to oust Labor from power.

The first show of strength will come in Parliament next Tuesday. The members have been called back from their recess for a three-day debate on the Government's economic policy. On Thursday, the Attlee Government will demand a vote of confidence.

With its top-heavy majority in Commons—393 of 640 seats—the Government should win. But if the vote shows a serious split in Labor ranks it might drive the Government to call for an immediate general election. If it is defeated it would resign.

In any case, the Government must pick a date for an election between now and next July, when its five-year term expires.

People's Court Sentences Rajk, Two Others to Die

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24 (INS).—Former Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk and two of his seven co-defendants were sentenced today to death on the gallows on charges of plotting with Marshal Tito and the United States to overthrow the Communist regime.

Rajk immediately stepped to the microphone and told the packed court room "The sentence is just." He declared he did not want to appeal for clemency.

Defence attorneys entered appeals for Rajk against his wishes, as well as for the other defendants sentenced.

(Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia delivered a strong protest to Hungary against the trial, charging it was a "monstrous provocation" against Yugoslavia "which was supposed to be the main defendant."

(The note, which Tito delivered personally to the Hungarian ambassador in Belgrade, said the "disgusting attack" on Yugoslavia—engaged in a nerve-war with Hungary and other members of the Cominform—had "boomeranged against its authors.")

Those condemned to death with Rajk were Dr. Tibor Szoenyi, 46, former supervisor of the Communist Party rank-and-file, and his deputy, Andras Szalai, 32.

Life imprisonment sentences were meted out to Pal Justus, 44, former member of Parliament, and Lazar Brankov, 37, former counsellor of the Yugoslav legation in Budapest who has been repudiated by the Tito Government.

Milan Ognyenovitch, 43, accused of being a Yugoslav spy, drew a nine-year prison term.

Lt.-Gen. Gyorgy Palffy, 40, former chief inspector of the Hungarian Army, and Bela Korondy, former army major, the remaining defendants, were not sentenced. They were ordered court-martialed.

Fast Time Now Ended In Province

As of today, British Columbia is back on standard time and daylight-saving time is a thing of the past until next year.

Daylight-saving time officially ended, by ruling of the Attorney-General's Department, at one minute after Saturday midnight—Saturday midnight fast time, that is.

People at public parties enjoyed another hour of whatever it was they were enjoying.

Says Trial Proves Russia Plans End of Yugoslavia

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP). — A Yugoslav diplomat accused Russia again tonight of plotting to crush his country. But he said Yugoslavia would not vote against Soviet moves in the United Nations Assembly just because they were Soviet-inspired.

Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler made his statement off the floor of the United Nations, where Chile threw the issue into the Assembly with a charge that Russia was "hatefully imperialist."

Bebler said in a United Nations radio broadcast a treason trial in Budapest "which was intended to prove the existence of a Yugoslav plot against Hungary, has proved in fact the opposite: The existence of a Soviet plot against the independence of Yugoslavia."

The lanky Yugoslav lawyer said: "This plot becomes today one of the major international problems. It is pregnant with many consequences. But this is another question and perhaps we can discuss it at some other time."

Bebler's statement about the trial came in a denial of trial statements of Rajk that the two had met and plotted against Hungary in a French prison camp in 1941.

Woman Guarded, Jeweler Charged in Plane Deaths

Mrs. M. Pitre, above, was under police guard in Quebec City yesterday as a result of the investigation into the crash of an airliner which carried 23 persons to their death on September 9. Police said that Mrs. Pitre told them that she placed a package aboard the airliner not knowing what it contained. A Quebec jeweler was charged with murder yesterday, accused of inducing Mrs. Pitre to place explosive aboard the plane.

J. A. Guay (right), 30-year-old Quebec City jeweler, was formally charged with murder in Quebec City yesterday following the death of his wife, Mrs. J. A. Guay, 28 (left), and 22 other persons who died in the crash of an airliner near St. Joachims, 52 miles from Quebec, 20 minutes after taking off. Police charge Guay with using a "mystery woman" girl friend to plant dynamite aboard the plane.

Charge Quebec Man With Plane Murder

QUEBEC, Sept. 24 (INS).—A 28-year-old jeweler was formally charged today with masterminding the mid-air explosion of an airliner which crashed with a loss of 23 lives in a love plot to kill his wife and gain her insurance.

J. Albert Guay, whose wife Rita—mother of a five-months-old girl—died in the crash of the airliner September 9, was arraigned on a murder charge in Quebec Sessions Court.

There were no survivors of the crash of the DC-3.

HEARING ADJOURNED

Henry Charland, deputy director of the Quebec Provincial Police, said Guay used a woman friend to deliver a home-made time bomb aboard the plane in a parcel addressed to a fictitious address.

He declared that the jeweler, who had worked in a Canadian arsenal during the war, had conceived the plot which blew up the airliner because of his love for a pretty waitress.

Police who investigated the case said the bomb was delivered to the airport by Mrs. Arthur Pitrie, 41, who has signed a confession.

Mrs. Pitrie, who has not been arrested, but is under police guard at her home, denied that she knew the package was a bomb.

She insisted that Guay told her it was a statue he was sending to Baie Comeau, and that she had been cautioned to handle the parcel with care.

A 26-year-old waitress was questioned by police and released when they became convinced she was not involved in the plot.

AGREED TO TRIP

Charland said that Guay decided to murder his wife so he could marry the waitress.

Combining his skill as a jeweler and his knowledge of armaments Guay allegedly constructed the bomb and then suggested to his wife that she visit some relatives in Baie Comeau, 300 miles from Quebec.

Mrs. Guay, who liked flying, consented to make the trip.

Before taking his wife to the plane, the official said Guay gave the package containing the explosive to Mrs. Pitre, who rushed it to the airport.

The bomb was placed on board the craft and it exploded about 20 minutes after the plane took off.

The president and two other officials of Kennecott Copper Co. died in the crash near St. Joachims, 52 miles from Quebec.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (CP).—A spokesman for the Kennecott Copper Company said tonight there was no truth to reports that there was $600,000 in company funds aboard the airliner that crashed near Quebec City September 9.

Liner Runs Red Blockade From Shanghai

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24 (INS).—The American President Lines was notified tonight that its liner, the Ss. General Gordon, left Shanghai today with some 1,300 American, British and other foreign-born passengers aboard.

The vessel was the first passenger liner to enter the big Chinese port city since the Nationalist blockade of the Communist-held coast was announced.

Negotiations for the ship to call at Shanghai were made with both the Chinese Nationalists and the Chinese Communists, and approved by the United States State Department and Maritime Commission.

Capt. W. S. Tyrell, master of the Gordon, wirelessed A.P.L. President George Killion tonight that the ship arrived Thursday and sailed today with her load of 1,300 passengers, their household goods and personal effects. The ship is proceeding to Hongkong where she will embark additional passengers.

Deny Reports Of Loan Move

LONDON, Sept. 24 (INS).—A Treasury spokesman categorically denied today Canberra reports that Britain has joined Australia in a move to seek a $1,125,000,000 loan from the International Monetary Fund.

The Canberra reports said Britain was slated to ask for $975,000,000 and Australia $150,000,000 as the result of a secret decision taken at the recent monetary talks in Washington.

Uneasy Quiet Marking U.S. Coal, Steel Trades

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (AP).—An uneasy quiet today hung over America's vital coal and steel industries after a week of rapid-fire developments.

C.I.O. United Steelworkers and industry negotiators—finally brought together again at the conference table by President Truman—are girding for a resumption in earnest of their contract talks in an effort to stave off a strike next week-end.

But the picture was not so bright in coal. No prospects were in sight for an end to the nationwide mine strike as it ended its first week.

Peace did return to the fields after state police patrols squelched a mild wave of violence.

The steel furnaces and coke ovens dotting this busy industrial area continued to devour a dwindling supply of the vital fuel. In another six days—if their owners and the men who operate them have not reached an agreement—they may have no need for coal.

A brief exploratory meeting between U.S. Steel Corp. Vice-President John Stephens and Steelworkers President Philip Murray climaxed a hectic two weeks of wrangling over conditions for their getting together.

Murray and Big-Steel only broke the ice at their first meeting and said they'd get down to business Monday. Representatives of ten other steel firms sit down with U.S.W. negotiating teams the same day but are expected to mark time pending outcome of the talks by U.S. Steel, the industry's bellwether.

John L. Lewis' miners continued their "no-day week" with no hopes for even a start towards a settlement of differences with the mine operators before next week.

Lewis and Northern and Western operators' spokesmen recessed their sporadic talks at White Sulphur Springs until next Thursday. The U.M.W. leader said no progress in negotiations could be expected while the steel talks are in progress.

Injured Logger Close to Death

According to reports received here, Gordon was crushed between two falling trees during logging operations at Port Renfrew.

His physician stated that he suffered a fractured spine and pelvis, other injuries, and was in "very serious" condition.

Gordon was flown to Sooke Friday evening and taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by the Victoria Ambulance Service.

A faller, he is an employee of the B.C. Forest Products Limited.

U.S. to Reinforce West's Arms Unity

To Speed Defence Strategy For North Atlantic Treaty

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—America's answer to Russia's new atomic weapon, administration officials made clear today, will be to speed up and reinforce the total military, political and economic unity of the West.

Responsible informants said the Truman Administration was more concerned than ever:

1. To rebuild this country's rickety atomic partnership with Britain and Canada.

2. To maintain the four-year American edge over Russia in bombs and any other atomic weapons.

3. To speed the creation of a unified defence strategy for America and Western Europe under the North Atlantic Treaty.

In both Washington and New York, top officials were at work on the strategy of getting ready for whatever the Russian development may involve.

Secretary of State Acheson was in New York at the Assembly of the United Nations in contact with Foreign Secretaries Bevin of Britain and Schuman of France.

In London, The Evening News said United States atomic bombs soon may be stored in England, under American control. This was not officially confirmed. The paper also forecast a greater sharing of atomic secrets between the United States, Britain and Canada—partners in the original atomic fission project.

There was a rush of reports that Russia had staged more than one atomic explosion.

But officially the word on this point was that given yesterday by President Truman—There is evidence that in recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in Russia.

And today highly placed informants said that the explosion which the president reported was the only atomic explosion which has occurred in Russia to date so far as the United States Government knows.

The time and the place of the incident has been kept secret by the White House, State Department and Defence Establishment.

The Vatican's semi-official newspaper, Osservatore Romano, declared news of Russia's accomplishment proves the need for all nations to disarm completely.

Bandit Busy

SEATTLE, Sept. 24 (AP).—A masked and armed bandit robbed two chain stores—one in Seattle and the other in Renton—of several thousand dollars tonight, police reported. He struck twice within 45 minutes at stores 20 miles apart.

Electrocuted

He was electrocuted when a boom on a crane putting pipe into place struck a 2,300-volt power line. Brown was helping put the pipe into place

No Grounds for Alarm Asserts Moscow Radio

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Sunday) (INS).—Radio Moscow said today that Russia has possessed the atom bomb since 1947 but that should not give the "slightest grounds for alarm."

The broadcast, first official Soviet reply to President Truman's announcement that Russia had set off an atomic explosion, said the Communist state will maintain its position favoring "prohibition of the use of atomic weapons."

Tass said:

"As for the production of atomic energy, it is necessary to recall that on November 6, 1947, (the then Foreign Minister) V. M. Molotov made a statement concerning the secret of the atom bomb when he declared it already was long ago non-existent.

NOT BLUFFING

"The statement signified that the Soviet Union already had discovered the secret atomic weapon at its disposal."

Continuing, the broadcast said:

"Scientific circles in the United States took this Molotov statement for a bluff, considering that the Russians would not possess the atomic weapon earlier than 1952.

"They are mistaken since the Soviet Union possessed the secret atomic weapon already in 1947.

"As for the alarm being spread on this account by certain foreign circles, there is not the slightest grounds for alarm.

"It should be pointed out that the Soviet Government, despite the existence in its country of the atomic weapon, intends to conform in the future with its previous position in favor of the prohibition of the use of atomic weapons."

LARGE-SCALE BLASTING

At the start of the broadcast, Tass said in explanation of the detection of the atomic explosion:

"In the Soviet Union, as is known, building work on a large scale is in progress. This includes work on hydro-electric stations, mines, canals and roads, which evoke the necessity of large-scale blasting with the use of the latest technical means.

"In so far as this blasting work has taken place frequently and in various parts of the country, it is possible it might draw attention from beyond the confines of the Soviet Union."

Nationalists Hit Armada Of Red Junks

This was the word brought to Hongkong by passengers on the last plane out of Amoy, the last good port left to Nationalist China.

These arrivals said Red artillery was shelling the Amoy Airport from the mainland, and that Nationalist planes were operating from an emergency strip set up on nearby Kinmen Island. Amoy Island is about 35 miles around.

The Communist junks, these arrivals said, were massing off Amoy's southwestern shore with the obvious intention of landing there.

If they do it, tens of thousands of Nationalist defenders on the port will have their escape sealed off, they said.

Meanwhile the Nationalist Government here conceded the loss of Changchow, railhead 30 miles west of Amoy, days after other sources reported it lost to the Reds.

Other accounts said the Reds had pressed down through the mountains of Northern Kwangtung Province and had strengthened their grip around Yungyun only 105 miles north-northeast of Canton.

First Worry of Britain Atomic Bomb Defence

LONDON, Sept. 24 (INS).—Highly reliable sources said tonight British military chiefs are concentrating their efforts on defence against a powerful atom-bomb attack from the air, delivered by planes or guided missiles.

These sources said Britain's goal is to build in five years a mighty, specialized air fleet capable of thwarting any A-bomb attack by a strong bomber force.

It was said it will take at least until 1954 to concentrate, equip and man sufficient fighter planes capable of destroying an enemy atomic armada.

Top British scientists pointed out it will take at least ten and perhaps as long as 15 years before Russia or any other European country could mount a 1,000-bomb atomic attack on any part of Western Europe.

Following are other developments in the wake of President Truman's announcement of an atomic explosion in Russia.

1. The Stockholm correspondent of the Mutual Broadcasting System quoted reliable Swedish sources as reporting a second atomic explosion in the Soviet Union near the Crimea on September 14.

2. Czech-exile source said Russia is now operating three atomic plants.

While Britons speculated on the possible stockpiling of American A-bombs in England to counter Russia's atomic progress, it was pointed out in competent quarters that Britain is not so much concerned with A-bomb production as A-bomb defence.

It was asserted that Britain's radar counter-defence is far ahead of that of other countries.

Sentenced to Death by Hungarian People's Court

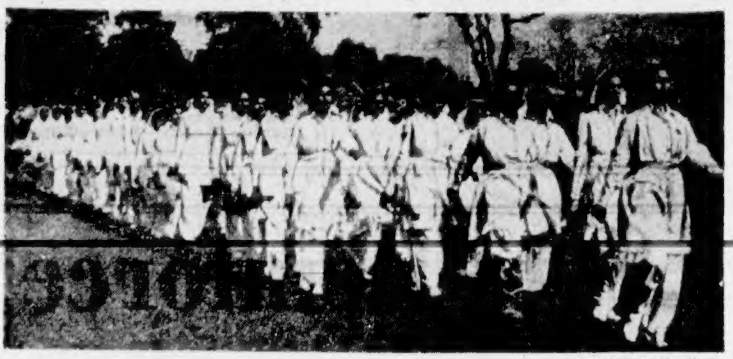
Pakistan Women in National Guard



—Central Press Canadian.

The women of Pakistan, who now enjoy full political rights, can boast a National Guard unit excelled in efficiency by none of the male regiments. Pakistinian women have abandoned the traditional Indian dress, the sari, for the smart white uniforms of wide trousers and knee-length blouses which this all-girl contingent is wearing. This is the nucleus of the women's army, directed by the Begun Liakat Aly Khan, wife of the President of the Council. It is one of three similar battalions, in East Pakistan, Punjab and Karachi.

Believe Former Cambridge Scholar Master-Minded Soviet Atom Bomb

LONDON, Sept. 24 (INS).—Prof. Peter Kapitza, a captive of the Communists since 1934, is believed to be the man who master-minded the Russian A-bomb.

English scientists who worked with the brilliant Russian physicist at Cambridge University until 1934, when he returned to Russia for a visit and was not allowed to leave, have the greatest respect for his ability.

ABSTRACT THINKER

They say Kapitza is the personification of the scientist who seeks nothing but calm and solitude in which to pursue his labors, and call him the abstract thinker brought into unwilling contact with life outside the "ivory tower."

He was born on June 26, 1894, in what is now Stalingrad, the son of Gen. Leonid Kapitza. He studied at Petrograd Polytechnic where his grasp of physics and chemistry amazed his instructors.

After his graduation he remained at the school as an instructor until he decided in 1921 that abstract research had become impossible in the Soviet.

He fled to England where his genius won him a scholarship at Cambridge University. He became a protege of Lord Rutherford, an outstanding physicist.

RETAINED CITIZENSHIP

Through the years he studied at Cambridge, Kapitza retained his Soviet citizenship, since he had not left Leningrad because of any violent political disagreements. He had left more as a busy man will leave a noisy room in which he cannot work.

In 1934, Kapitza, his wife and two children made the ill-fated visit to Moscow to attend a conference in honor of the great Russian chemist, Mendelejeff, and never was allowed to leave the Soviet.

News of his detention caused a furore in Britain, where he had been appointed in 1930 as first director of the Royal Society London laboratory in a plant fitted out according to his own instructions and in which he had a free hand to experiment as he wished.

Kapitza has been conducting experiments in two areas, the liquification of gases with a simple apparatus requiring slight pressures, and working on the properties of matters under the influence of intense magnetic fields.

NEEDED SERVICES

The Soviet Embassy in London said Kapitza was being held because the Moscow regime "has found it necessary to utilize for scientific activities within the country the services of Soviet scientists who have hitherto been working abroad."

The Soviet Government proceeded to fit out a laboratory for the scientist and even succeeded in purchasing the Cambridge equipment he had been using.

Kapitza was given a small English-style bungalow to live in and, according to the Soviets, enough money for all his wants.

Until 1939, nothing was heard of him until it was announced that he had received a prize for inventing a tiny rotary turbine no bigger than a matchbox which manufactured liquid air at the rate of 30 kilograms (66 pounds) an hour.

HONORED BY BRITISH

The British Council of the Institution of Electrical Engineers awarded him the Faraday Medal in 1942 for his "contribution to science in the generation and utilization of intense magnetic fields."

Finally, he was given the Franklin Institute of America annual gold medal, in 1944, for "distinguished work in physics." The award was accepted by the Russian Ambassador in Washington in his behalf, since apparently, he was not permitted to leave Russia.

Pravda announced, in 1945, that Kapitza was working in a laboratory on Mount Alagoez in Armenia with a powerful magnet of his own design. The newspaper added that Russian scientists at the laboratory had discovered that the hydrogen nucleus is the third component of cosmetic rays—mysterious emanations from outer space.

For this and other reasons, British scientists believe that Stalin has captured one of the world's top atomic specialists.

New Attitude, Need for Dollars Has Yugoslavs Wooing Tourists

From the green, majestic mountains of Slovenia in the north to the cobalt-blue seas off the Dalmatian coast in the south, Yugoslavia spreads her panoramic beauty before the tourist.

The new and friendly reception is partly due, of course, to a desire to share in the world-wide demand for dollars and hard currency to finance the country's reconstruction.

The welcome mat, in some ways, is sign of Yugoslavia's confidence in herself, an important step in its newly-developed postwar lets-get-acquainted-again campaign with the West.

It reflects a potentially-historic decision by Premier Tito to turn westward economically now that the Russian-dominated Cominform countries are attempting to squeeze him out through sabotage, espionage and economic sanctions.

CAN GET VISAS

One indication of this can be found in the greater ease with which foreigners from the West can obtain visas. Some of them are legitimate traders with whom Tito is anxious to do business; others are just out for an easy dollar.

Some of them, too, are honest-to-Marx Communists or fellow travelers from the West—anxious to see how Tito's experiment in running a Red country independent of Moscow's whims and commands is working out.

But an increasing number are just plain tourists, coming to invest their holiday cash in a land of legendary beauty and history shaped by the difficulties of the powder-keg Balkans at the crossroads of East and West.

They'll find little of this in Belgrade itself, aside from the bomb-pocked evidence of the World War and Tito's big building program aimed at a "new Belgrade."

UNSURPASSED BEAUTY

But up in Slovenia's hills which were the Partisans' stronghold during the war; down in Montenegro's forbidding, never-conquered mountains, and along the sun-splashed Adriatic, history wraps itself in a setting of unsurpassed beauty.

Down here in 13th Century Dubrovnik, for example, slender firs stand as stately sentinels at the water's edge, watching over blowsy palms whose delicate plumes flirt daintily with each wisp of wind.

Above them tower the greying stone ramparts of ancient forts which guarded this old port's independence against all comers. Dubrovnik's shrewd old-time traders and world-wandering seafarers had a saying: "Better a bad dispute than a good war." But they wanted insurance, too.

Scientists Seek Methods To Treat Atomic Burns

Existence of the project at the Medical College of Virginia was disclosed today, some 24 hours after President Truman announced in Washington that the United States has evidence that an "atomic explosion" occurred in Russia in recent weeks.

BEGAN YEAR AGO

The studies, begun a little over a year ago, are being directed by Dr. Everett I. Evans, head of surgical research at M.C.V., and a nationally-known authority on the treatment of burns.

Visits to Hiroshima and Nagasaki, where atom bombs were dropped, have convinced Dr. Evans that protection against the effect of burns constitutes one of the most important problems of atomic warfare. As a result, he has set up here "the largest burn research" centre in the country.

Should the United States be fortunate enough to escape atomic bombardment, he said, the experiments will be of value in everyday life for the treatment of burns and scalds, and as an aid to surgical patients.

The researchers are out to find improved methods of burn dressings, early skin grafting, and better ways of feeding burn patients. Methods for protecting the liver and kidneys, injuries often fatal to burn patients, also will be investigated.

Nab Quarry On Handcar

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 24 (AP).—It couldn't have been better if Mack Sennett had written the scenario.

There were the deputies in their patrol car. On the nearby railroad tracks, pumping madly away at his handcar, was the quarry.

At one point the highway veered away from the tracks, but the deputies took a short cut and parked their car across them. The handcar ground to a halt.

Tom Bowie, facing whisky-possession charges, wonders today if he shouldn't have gone to a movie instead. The railroad was also wondering how he got the handcar.

Geiger-Muller Counter Aid in Detecting Bomb

How did the United States learn of the atomic explosion in Russia which President Truman announced yesterday? One of the explanations is that the U.S. discovered it by scientific means. Of all the known scientific devices, the so-called Geiger-Muller counter is the most sensitive to the presence of radioactivity in the air caused by such an explosion. Scientists say that by setting up Geiger-Muller counters in strategic parts of the world, the location and intensity of an atomic explosion can be detected. In the following article, written expressly for International News Service, Dr. James Stokley, a noted expert in the field of nuclear research, explains what an atomic explosion does to the atmosphere and how the counter detects it.

Of the General Electric Co. Research Laboratories

Written Expressly for International News Service

SCHNECTADY, N.Y., Sept. 24 (INS).—At the basis of the explosion of an atomic bomb is the splitting of fission of a particular kind of uranium known at U-235, or of the man-made element, plutonium, which is also capable of undergoing fission.

The products of the fission are not the common varieties of the various elements in the atmosphere, but are radioactive. That is, they are giving off various rays and particles similar to those emitted from radium.

In addition, the blast of an atomic bomb explosion itself gives off not only visible light of great brilliance, but also other radiations like those that might be given off by some super X-ray outfit of power and voltage far above any that man has yet made in the laboratories.

CONVERTS ELEMENTS IN AIR

These rays are capable of converting other elements such as those in the air into radioactive form.

Thus, after the explosion of an atomic bomb, there is a great cloud of radioactive gases which hold together for some time and then gradually dissipate.

The night after the first explosion at Bikini a group of scientists in a B-29 located the cloud a couple of hundrid miles northwest of the atoll.

After the winds of the upper atmosphere have broken up the cloud, the radioactive atoms are scattered still farther and they may travel many thousands of miles away from their origin before their radioactivity has died away.

DETECTED IN TEXAS

Thus it has been said that the effect of the Bikini bombs was detected several weeks later by sensitive instruments in Texas.

There are several devices used for detecting these radiations of which perhaps the most important is the Geiger-Muller counter named after the scientists who developed it.

The wire and the tube are connected to a source of electricity at high voltage almost enough to make a spark between the wire and the tube.

If one of the atoms from the explosion, or some other radioactive material comes close to the counter, the particles which it emits will pass through the tube breaking up some of the atoms of the gases inside.

These will now conduct electricity better than the unbroken atoms and there is an electrical discharge between the wire and the tube.

These can be amplified and recorded and the number of discharges every second is a measurement of the amount of radioactiviey.

Blaze Sweeps Montana City Business Block

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 24 (INS).—A raging fire seared its way through a half-block section of downtown Butte today, causing an estimated $300,000 damage and reported to be the city's worst blaze in 20 years.

Rooming house residents were routed out of their beds shortly after the alarm was sounded by two police officers at 2:20 a.m. No one was injured. One elderly man was carried from a burning building.

The fire of undetermined origin broke out in the basement of the Park Theatre, and all available firemen and volunteers battled the smoke and flames for more than three hours before bringing it under control.

Several firemen were overcome by smoke.

Witnesses said smoke and flame rose more than 60 feet in the air and the licking flames threatened the entire business section.

Says Russia Draining Satellites

GENEVA, Sept. 24 (INS).—Reports reaching Geneva said tonight that Russia has intensified plans to milk her satellites of precious uranium ore in the hope of speeding atom bomb production.

The reports, originating with East Europe exiles who fled Communism, said Russia already is working the richest uranium deposit in Europe—the Jachimov mines in Northern Czecho-Slovakia—at a 150-carload-a-week rate.

The Russians were said to be pushing feverish prospecting plans in Western Czecho-Slovakia and investigating uranium sources in Poland, Hungary and the Ukraine.

A secret report compiled by miners who managed to escape from the Jachimov region disclosed that the Czech Government was forced to cede a 12½-square-mile strip of the area to Russia in 1945.

AIR SERVICE DISRUPTED

Trans-Canada Air Lines schedules between Vancouver and Victoria were disrupted yesterday because of dense fog, especially in Vancouver.

It was 4 p.m. yesterday before regular flights were made between the two cities, and dense fog at Vancouver forced a North Star flight from the East to land at Patricia Bay instead of Vancouver. Some passengers had to travel to the Mainland by boat.

GET COUGAR BOUNTY

Although they bagged no deer when they were hunting yesterday in the San Juan River area, two city men, Roderick Prewett, of 2621 Doncaster Road, and Harvey Godfrey, 714 Queen's Avenue, did the next best thing.

They collected and split a $20 bounty for a year-old female cougar which Prewett shot about 9:30 a.m. near the headwaters of the river.

"Prewett noticed the cougar watching me and shot it from about 100 yards," said Godfrey.

Prospectors More Active This Year

British Columbia prospectors staked 16 more claims during the first seven months of this year than they did during the same period a year ago, according to figures announced yesterday by the Provincial Mines Department.

A total of 1,652 claims were staked during the first seven months of this year as compared with 1,636 claims in the first seven months of 1948.

NO BIG DISCOVERIES

No notable discoveries of uranium-bearing ores have been made to date ths year, officials say.

However, they report that some interesting samples have been received, not all of which have been fully tested.

The prospectors will benefit from dollar devaluation.

Higher Gasoline Prices Due in Early October

Gasoline price increases covering the Canadian dollar devaluation will be authorized the first week in October by the British Columbia Coal and Petroleum Control Board, it was learned yesterday.

Applications received to date by the board for increases from two major British Columbia oil companies ask boosts of 1.5 and 1.6 cents a gallon.

It is predicted that the authorized increase will be at least one cent a gallon.

Price increases effective immediately for gasoline, kerosene and light fuel oil were announced yesterday in Toronto by Imperial Oil Ltd.

The Eastern company raised gasoline and kerosene prices by 1.5 cents a gallon and light fuel oil by a cent a gallon.

The board will hold no hearings and the gosaline price adjustment will be just another matter of arithmetic, according to Chairman Dr. W. A. Carrothers.

The bulk of British Columbia's gasoline comes from California either as crude oil, which is refined here, or directly in refined form.

Since the Canadian dollar now buys only 90 cents worth of goods in United States money, the United States oil will cost more.

Complicating the adjustment, however, is the fact that British Columbia companies buy both crude and refined oil products from the United States.

The board must work out what part of the increased costs of crude oil should be borne by the gasoline consumers and at the same time determine a price which will make it possible for British Columbia companies buying refined gasoline to continue to do so at a reasonable profit.

The figures also indicated that the flow of population to British Columbia during the month exceeded migration, reversing the trend of previous months.

"Greater Love Hath No Man Than This . . ."

ONLY the callous and unthinking among citizens will be unmoved today as Victoria pauses to dedicate the new War Memorial Arena to our war dead. For a moment, however brief, all that is represented in the supreme sacrifice will come back to mind and to memory—the gift of those who did not return. That was timeless and great. It stands as a shining example of unselfish service, courage and self-reliance wherever there are people to think and to feel.

Many a vacant chair in a Victoria home was caused by the Battle for Freedom that is not yet wholly won. Whatever the road and the tasks ahead, there can be no denying that pilgrimage and what it stands for in the human fold. It is the world's tragedy that in this century the journey has taken such a toll of the lives of our youngest, our bravest and our best. It is they above all who will be honored and remembered gratefully today.

Among those who have seen battle and faced fire it will be appreciated that Victoria's new war memorial is one that will be of useful service to the living. In not a few instances, no doubt, the sons and daughters of the men and women whose sacrifice it commemorates will have there some of the happiest moments of their lives. They will progress from junior to intermediate and senior teams; and perhaps once again to championships like the "Cougars" of old, in Canada's fastest and cleanest sport, ice hockey. That is as it should be.

Modern times and pressures make it difficult for citizens in a community to do things together as once they did. There will be genuine community spirit, however, behind the dedication of the War Memorial Arena, and the sincerest good wishes for its operational success. For the true spirit of the occasion and its deepest significance one might turn to the words of St. John: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Court Test of Trade Licence Fees in the Making

EVENTS appear to be shaping towards a court test of the legality or otherwise of the manner in which the City Council revised this year's schedule of trade licence fees. This is probably a good thing, because so far the council has not offered any explanation of the formula on which the increases are computed. This has led understandably to an assumption by many that there was no formula. Since then it has remained adamant, despite protests that the new rates are highly discriminatory.

The reaction of the Victoria Bar Association is being watched with interest. Under the new schedule its members are being charged three times the fee formerly imposed, and so far more than a score of law firms have refused to pay. The City has issued final demands and says it will prosecute if fees remain unpaid. The Bar Association says it is ready to defend court action against any of its members, so that the issue seems to be reaching a showdown.

In all the objections that have been voiced against the revised schedule there has been no denial of the fact that the City needed additional revenue. It was the manner in which the council arbitrarily and without explanation multiplied fees in some cases, while letting other groups off with minor increases, that touched off the dispute. Had the council been less high-handed about the whole thing and offered reasons for the variance in the increases it might have been possible to iron out differences without recourse to the courts. Those who find fees suddenly trebled or quadrupled like to know why.

Plebiscite Is Right of Ward Six Alone

IT appears that Municipal Affairs Minister MacDonald, having received no guidance from the Saanich Council, is bent on seeking elsewhere some prop to buttress a Cabinet decision on Ward Six's petition for secession from the municipality. He is toying with the idea of having all Saanich ratepayers vote by plebiscite on the matter, rather than Ward Six ratepayers alone. There are two cogent reasons why this would not be a good policy to follow.

In the first place the conflict of rural and urban views within the municipality is so sharp that the secession proposal might easily be defeated by the larger vote contained in the inner wards. This would then freeze for perpetuity the inharmonies that exist to frustrate Saanich as a whole. Municipal government there in some respects is at a standstill because of the diverse needs of rural and urban wards, which are not reconcilable. The present boundaries of the municipality are said to be too large and unwieldy for efficient and equitable administration.

Secondly, Ward Six has complied with all the requirements of the Saanich Relief Act, under which secession may be granted. DEVALUATION

Sir,—Devaluation redistributes national income. That which is collected from the consumers is paid as an export subsidy or bounty. On gold it is a bounty, and because the United States is the predominant market for other leading exports as newsprint, minerals, lumber and cattle, the American market prices will also prevail with the same result.

Tremendous profits are being made on the stock market as a result. The United States Government will get a slice of these profits from its citizens, who will pay income tax on theirs whether realized on the New York or Canadian exchanges, because speculative profits are taxable income; in fact they have been for more than 25 years.

Is it not time that our Government took notice of this unearned income?

YOUTH AT WHEEL

Sir,—Apparently from carefully tabulated reports it has been found that an automobile in the hands of a person from 16-20 years is far more dangerous than in the hands of a more mature person. Still we would have adults 50-60 take drivers tests much more frequently in our efforts to ensure safety. The Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee reports "a car in the hands of a teen-ager is roughly twice as dangerous as a car driven by a mature adult; in brief driving ability is directly related to maturity and judgment."

Scores of insurance companies have fixed appreciably higher premiums if a driver under 25 years is to operate the car when applying for insurance. More than a year ago forty states raised the premiums insurance companies were allowed to charge if anyone under 25 acted as driver. This was not mere whim, but a question of cold statistics. The American Automobile Association gives three general reminders or points for guidance, viz: Youth must have sound educational program, preferably in school, to teach better driving; stricter police enforcement of traffic rules, and stricter licence requirements; parents should not only teach the technical points of good driving, but also set an example themselves.

In elaborating upon this it states that an eighteen-year-old boy who sees his father or mother driving 50 miles per hour in a 40-mile zone and getting away with it can almost invariably be expected to drive 60 miles per hour under the same conditions from sheer youthful exuberance.

May I suggest that cognizance be taken of these vital statistics before any definite action is instituted regarding stricter safety measures when operating a motor vehicle.

ANOTHER VIEW

Sir,—I would suggest at this time of world-wide financial chaos that Canadians remember their proud wartime declaration: "We're all in it this time."

Devaluation of sterling, which is a major catastrophe to many, can be the means of our living up to that declaration. At some sacrifice to herself, Canada can forego the benefits which will accrue from one direction, and prove her sincerity in the declaration: "We're all in it this time."

If importers of British goods based the purchase price on the full value of the pound, and residents of Canada, whose incomes are derived from British funds, were protected from loss, Canada would be doing a noble deed, and the sacrifice would be worth while.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU remember how it was that Rudyard Kipling rolled Bournemouth, Torquay, Sorrento and the Bay of Naples off his tongue and called the mixture Victoria. The port was strong that night.

'Twas a mellow compliment, to be sure, if slightly overdone.

But he set an old-world pattern, to which itinerant vendors of fiction have subscribed with delight ever since. It saves them using their own eyes.

Miss Eva-Lis Wuorio, for instance, a bright lass who junkets back and forth to Europe for Maclean's Magazine. She was here a while since to interview Rosamond Marshall, the lady who produces delicacies like the "Duchess Hotspur," which some aver should be titled "Duchess Hotstuff."

Eva-Lis had to find a setting for her story, naturally. Fortunately it was easy of access. It's been peddled to visiting writers ad nauseam—mythology.

To wit:

"It would seem to me more appropriate to meet Rosamond Marshall, author of romantic novels, in a night club, but what happened? I met her in the Empress Hotel in Victoria where British decorum is carried to such lengths that the hotel's public relations types try to keep items out of the papers instead of trying to get them in."

* * *

These foreigners certainly can find things out. I'm sure our news editor never heard about this.

But just to be just I took a trip down to the Empress before I started this piece to observe British decorum at work. I never saw a lorgnette. Perhaps I chose an inopportune moment but the human types I encountered were queerly like those I saw in Portland's Multnomah last year.

The lobby was filled, as usual, with Americans, and one of them had so little regard for decorum he was strolling around with his shirt-tail hanging out. It was one of those shirts whose tails are meant to hang out, nevertheless it was hanging out.

I came out to the fresh air in a bit of a daze, wondering if I were in the wrong city. Then I remembered another tid bit:

"In the rose gardens where Ros posed for pictures with her French poodle, tea was being served, the English voices soft in the air, the air heady with flower fragrance. A horse-drawn carriage clop-clopped by on the quiet streets lined by lampposts tidily hung with crockery pots dripping flowers."

* * *

But alas, it was soon dispelled. Fifty modern cars dashed madly across the Causeway, leaving behind the clop-clopping tally-ho we keep solely for innocents abroad. A rude voice, obviously not from Pall Mall, said in retort to some insult or another: "Aw nuts!" The crockery pots, I saw on close inspection, were made of wire, and it was water that was dripping—on a policeman being photographed by a girl from Brooklyn.

Of Rosamond herself, I recalled this from Eva-Lis: "Her breezy good humor, lusty gaiety and swift repartee almost sounded like a foreign language in that languid lotus-land of a spot."

I thought back a few months to the day I chatted in the Marionette Library with Ros—I didn't address her so familiarly as that, I had better mention. She was a breezy soul all right, so folksy in fact as to prove that authors and their characters are not necessarily synonymous. I'm sure the Duchess Hotspur would never have talked to me the way she did.

I understood her language, too, strange to say. She didn't sound a bit like a foreigner. Her mother was waiting for her on the sidewalk and when the two of them stepped into a car they were for all the world like half-a-dozen other mother-and-daughter combinations visible on Douglas Street.

But then itinerant writers reared on Kipling and travel folders never see Douglas Street; that must be the explanation. Perhaps they're wise. If they stepped beyond the boundaries of the Causeway and the Empress reality might upset their preconceived scripts.

* * *

Miss Wuorio did extend her horizon a bit, I must admit. She traveled all the way up to Cobble Hill to see Mrs. Marshall in her work cottage. When she drove over the Malahat "it poured thick, misty-blue, British Columbia rain."

That makes me wistful. I don't see why Nature reserves her phenomenons for visitors alone.

Eva-Lis also did her best to tell Maclean's readers about Cobble Hill, pointing out that it is a backwoods settlement in the wilds of inland Vancouver Island. The Island Highway used to run through it, as you know, but now 'tis true this remote settlement is all of one mile from the highway and three miles from salt water.

Cobble Hill, expounded Eva-Lis, is so far off the beaten track it is ignored by the retired brigadiers who populate the Island's gentler watering places.

That intrigued me. I'm not long back from one of these gentler watering places and the nearest thing to a brigadier I saw was the steel helmet one of them wore thirty years ago. Maybe it's Eva-Lis and I who don't talk the same language.

IN these days when prices seem to be climbing endlessly, it's heartening to see the odd case where they are headed down. It becomes a remarkable phenomenon when the example is a Government-owned business.

The lastest report of the British Columbia Power Commission provides an encouraging example of an old principle that seems out of fashion these days—that, by low prices, sales can be increased to the extent that net revenue is greater.

* * *

The commission was formed in 1945 to increase the availability of electric power in British Columbia, especially in rural areas. Starting out with five electrical properties and 11,906 customers in 1945, the commission now has 16 additional properties and a total of 31,619.

From the start the commission banked on the effectiveness of highly promotional rates. For example in the Albernis the residential rates are 7 cents per kilowatt for the first 20 kilowatt hours, 3 cents for the next 60 kilowatt hours and 8 cents for the balance of monthly consumption.

The commission has been successful in its aim of increasing power consumption at a lower average cost. During the year ending March, 1948, the average cost for residential users dropped from 4.5 cents to 4 cents per kwh, while the average monthly consumption jumped from 84 to 96 kilowatt hours. The average cost to commercial users dropped from 4.5 cents to 3.7 cents, while average consumption increased from 308 to 382 kwh. The average cost to industrial power users remained at 1.7 cents, but average consumption jumped from 2,734 to 3,294 kwh.

In some areas consumption per customer has doubled over a three-year period, while the cost has been reduced by 50 per cent.

The commission reported that as volume of service continues to increase, further reductions in price can be expected.

Education Minister W. T. Straith returned Thursday from a meeting of the Canadian Educational Association at Fredericton. He was struck with the fact that many other provinces of Canada are spending much more for new school buildings than British Columbia. They are building with steel and stone, buildings that may last 150 years and upwards, Mr. Straith said, and the cost per school room was very much higher than in British Columbia where educational authorities think it's better to put up cheaper buildings to last 40 to 50 years.

He points out that changes in educational practice tend to render old buildings obsolete while they may remain structurally sound . . . for example, South Park School in Victoria.

Mr. Straith noted that large industrial and manufacturing concerns are showing great interest in vocational training. Several large companies sent representatives to the Fredericton conference.

Observation Car: By G. B.

NOTES from Charles Clarke, who is on a motor tour of Canada and the United States: "Much of the coastal scenery of Washington and Oregon is like that of British Columbia. On approaching the city of Clearwater, Iowa, we noticed a sign bearing the words, 'Come Here to Live, Work and Play.' I think a welcome in similar words would be appropriate for many Vancouver Island communities. Worms of various colors were put up in neat plastic containers for fishermen at Clearwater Lake. Large watermelons sold for 46 cents each, with free samples. We halted to look at a poultry farm marked by a sign reading 'Eggs for Sale. We Have 200 Feathered Employees Working for Us.' The Federal highway through Idaho was in perfect condition. Roadside advertising is limited to city and village boundaries, so there is nothing to mar the scenery. In Michigan many tourist camps charge $3 per couple for modern quarters. On seeing trucks roaring along at 60 miles per hour on a four-lane highway near Detroit, we could not help observing a roadside sign reading 'Complete Funerals, $165. Tombstones, 10 Per Cent Off Today.' Toronto had grown since my last visit, but many buildings in the business district were black from soot and lack of periodical cleaning" . . . The sole advantage of bad handwriting is that it often conceals bad spelling . . . Saturday Night explained the dollar crisis thus: "The United States produces things that everybody else needs. Everybody else produces things that the United States can get along without" . . . The most offensive persons are the most easily offended . . . Safety slogan: "It is not always wrong to cheat. The man who drives his automobile carefully cheats death" . . . Even in counterfeit bills, the decay of art is evident.

When Not to Stand and Stare

(From The Peterborough Examiner)

DRIVING on one of the highways near Peterborough over the week-end we passed the scene of a serious motor accident. The Provincial Police were on the spot; an ambulance was drawn up on the roadside; a man who was obviously a physician was working over the body of one of the injured people. We saw that there was nothing that we could do to help, and we drove on because we felt that it was the proper thing to do. But there were a great many, many cars parked nearby, and a crowd of at least 50 people, including children, were as near the scene of the accident as the police would allow them to approach. As we passed, two other cars stopped and several people, again including a number of children, leapt out and rushed to see what was going on.

We would not like to say anything which deter people from lending a hand when others are in trouble, but we think that those spectators had no business to be where they were. The police and the ambulance crew were in complete charge of the situation; if they had wanted extra help they would have flagged down passers-by until they found what they wanted. The bystanders could only stare and make comments.

The central figure in the scene was a man who was clearly badly hurt, and might have been dying. Is it proper to join a crowd and watch a fellow-creature in distress? Particularly, is it proper to bring children to look at what may be a very shocking sight, and what might be the last few minutes on earth of an accident victim?

We are sure that most of the people in that crowd were kindly, and that they would not willingly do an indecent thing. But is there not a very real indecency in flocking to stare at a man who is dying, as if his death were a show which Fate had provided to make gossip for a holiday?

When an accident happens we are equally bound by a sense of decency to pass by.

Signing himself "A Friend," he dashed off a few carefully chosen words of complaint to The Daily British Colonist about the blasphemy of Victoria butchers who kept open late on Sundays. Mayor-elect Thomas Harris, a butcher by trade, was one of the worst offenders:

"Greater Love Hath No Man Than This . . ."

ONLY the callous and unthinking among citizens will be unmoved today as Victoria pauses to dedicate the new War Memorial Arena to our war dead. For a moment, however brief, all that is represented in the supreme sacrifice will come back to mind and to memory—the gift of those who did not return. That was timeless and great. It stands as a shining example of unselfish service, courage and self-reliance wherever there are people to think and to feel.

Many a vacant chair in a Victoria home was caused by the Battle for Freedom that is not yet wholly won. Whatever the road and the tasks ahead, there can be no denying that pilgrimage and what it stands for in the human fold. It is the world's tragedy that in this century the journey has taken such a toll of the lives of our youngest, our bravest and our best. It is they above all who will be honored and remembered gratefully today.

Among those who have seen battle and faced fire it will be appreciated that Victoria's new war memorial is one that will be of useful service to the living. In not a few instances, no doubt, the sons and daughters of the men and women whose sacrifice it commemorates will have there some of the happiest moments of their lives. They will progress from junior to intermediate and senior teams; and perhaps once again to championships like the "Cougars" of old, in Canada's fastest and cleanest sport, ice hockey. That is as it should be.

Modern times and pressures make it difficult for citizens in a community to do things together as once they did. There will be genuine community spirit, however, behind the dedication of the War Memorial Arena, and the sincerest good wishes for its operational success. For the true spirit of the occasion and its deepest significance one might turn to the words of St. John: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Court Test of Trade Licence Fees in the Making

EVENTS appear to be shaping towards a court test of the legality or otherwise of the manner in which the City Council revised this year's schedule of trade licence fees. This is probably a good thing, because so far the council has not offered any explanation of the formula on which the increases are computed. This has led understandably to an assumption by many that there was no formula. Since then it has remained adamant, despite protests that the new rates are highly discriminatory.

The reaction of the Victoria Bar Association is being watched with interest. Under the new schedule its members are being charged three times the fee formerly imposed, and so far more than a score of law firms have refused to pay. The City has issued final demands and says it will prosecute if fees remain unpaid. The Bar Association says it is ready to defend court action against any of its members, so that the issue seems to be reaching a showdown.

In all the objections that have been voiced against the revised schedule there has been no denial of the fact that the City needed additional revenue. It was the manner in which the council arbitrarily and without explanation multiplied fees in some cases, while letting other groups off with minor increases, that touched off the dispute. Had the council been less high-handed about the whole thing and offered reasons for the variance in the increases it might have been possible to iron out differences without recourse to the courts. Those who find fees suddenly trebled or quadrupled like to know why.

Plebiscite Is Right of Ward Six Alone

IT appears that Municipal Affairs Minister MacDonald, having received no guidance from the Saanich Council, is bent on seeking elsewhere some prop to buttress a Cabinet decision on Ward Six's petition for secession from the municipality. He is toying with the idea of having all Saanich ratepayers vote by plebiscite on the matter, rather than Ward Six ratepayers alone. There are two cogent reasons why this would not be a good policy to follow.

In the first place the conflict of rural and urban views within the municipality is so sharp that the secession proposal might easily be defeated by the larger vote contained in the inner wards. This would then freeze for perpetuity the inharmonies that exist to frustrate Saanich as a whole. Municipal government there in some respects is at a standstill because of the diverse needs of rural and urban wards, which are not reconcilable. The present boundaries of the municipality are said to be too large and unwieldy for efficient and equitable administration.

Secondly, Ward Six has complied with all the requirements of the Saanich Relief Act, under which secession may be granted. If the spirit of the act is to follow its letter it is difficult to see why any attempt should be made to avoid its obligations. Ward Six ratepayers are the people who seek a legitimate right. The only point to be settled is to prove the required degree of unanimity among them. This a plebiscite confined to their own area would make clear beyond doubt.

From the start the commission banked on the effectiveness of highly promotional rates. For example in the Albernis the residential rates are 7 cents per kilowatt for the first 20 kilowatt hours, 2 cents for the next 60 kilowatt hours and 8 cents for the balance of monthly consumption.

The commission has been successful in its aim of increasing power consumption at a lower average cost. During the year ending March, 1948, the average cost for residential users dropped from 4.5 cents to 4 cents per kwh, while the average monthly consumption jumped from 84 to 96 kilowatt hours. The average cost to commercial users dropped from 4.5 cents to 3.7 cents, while average consumption increased from 308 to 382 kwh. The average cost to industrial power users remained at 1.7 cents, but average consumption jumped from 2,734 to 3,294 kwh.

In some areas consumption per customer has doubled over a three-year period, while the cost has been reduced by 50 per cent.

The commission reported that as volume of service continues to increase, further reductions in price can be expected.

Education Minister W. T. Straith returned Thursday from a meeting of the Canadian Educational Association at Fredericton. He was struck with the fact that many other provinces of Canada are spending much more for new school buildings than British Columbia. They are building with steel and stone, buildings that may last 150 years and upwards, Mr. Straith said, and the cost per school room was very much higher than in British Columbia where educational authorities think it's better to put up cheaper buildings to last 40 to 50 years.

He points out that changes in educational practice tend to render old buildings obsolete while they may remain structurally sound . . . for example, South Park School in Victoria.

Mr. Straith noted that large industrial and manufacturing concerns are showing great interest in vocational training. Several large companies sent representatives to the Fredericton conference.

Incidentally the association accepted an invitation to meet in Victoria next year.

Observation Car:

By G. B.

NOTES from Charles Clarke, who is on a motor tour of Canada and the United States: "Much of the coastal scenery of Washington and Oregon is like that of British Columbia. On approaching the city of Clearwater, Iowa, we noticed a sign bearing the words, 'Come Here to Live, Work and Play.' I think a welcome in similar words would be appropriate for many Vancouver Island communities. Worms of various colors were put up in neat plastic containers for fishermen at Clearwater Lake. Large watermelons sold for 46 cents each, with free samples. We halted to look at a poultry farm marked by a sign reading 'Eggs for Sale. We Have 200 Feathered Employees Working for Us.' The Federal highway through Idaho was in perfect condition. Roadside advertising is limited to city and village boundaries, so there is nothing to mar the scenery. In Michigan many tourist camps charge $3 per couple for modern quarters. On seeing trucks roaring along at 60 miles per hour on a four-lane highway near Detroit, we could not help observing a roadside sign reading 'Complete Funerals, $165. Tombstones, 10 Per Cent Off Today.' Toronto had grown since my last visit, but many buildings in the business district were black from soot and lack of periodical cleaning" . . . The sole advantage of bad handwriting is that it often conceals bad spelling . . . Saturday Night explained the dollar crisis thus: "The United States produces things that everybody else needs. Everybody else produces things that the United States can get along without" . . . The most offensive persons are the most easily offended . . . Safety slogan: "It is not always wrong to cheat. The man who drives his automobile carefully cheats death" . . . Even in counterfeit bills, the decay of art is evident.

When Not to Stand and Stare

(From The Peterborough Examiner)

DRIVING on one of the highways near Peterborough over the week-end we passed the scene of a serious motor accident. The Provincial Police were on the spot; an ambulance was drawn up on the roadside; a man who was obviously a physician was working over the body of one of the injured people. We saw that there was nothing that we could do to help, and we drove on because we felt that it was the proper thing to do. But there were a great many, many cars parked nearby, and a crowd of at least 50 people, including children, were as near the scene of the accident as the police would allow them to approach. As we passed, two other cars stopped and several people, again including a number of children, leapt out and rushed to see what was going on.

We would not like to say anything which deter people from lending a hand when others are in trouble, but we think that those spectators had no business to be where they were. The police and the ambulance crew were in complete charge of the situation: if they had wanted extra help they would have flagged down passers-by until they found what they wanted. The bystanders could only stare and make comments.

The central figure in the scene was a man who was clearly badly hurt, and might have been dying. Is it proper to join a crowd and watch a fellow-creature in distress? Particularly, is it proper to bring children to look at what may be a very shocking sight, and what might be the last few minutes on earth of an accident victim?

We are sure that most of the people in that crowd were kindly, and that they would not willingly do an indecent thing. But is there not a very real indecency in flocking to stare at a man who is dying, as if his death were a show which Fate had provided to make gossip for a holiday?

When an accident happens we are equally bound by a sense of decency to pass by.

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

By G. E. MORTIMORE

SKILL in punctuation, spelling and grammar is fortunately no measure of piety. If it were, this letter-writer would have been stopped at the Celestial Gate for lack of credentials.

Signing himself "A Friend," he dashed off a few carefully chosen words of complaint to The Daily British Colonist about the blasphemy of Victoria butchers who kept open late on Sundays. Mayor-elect Thomas Harris, a butcher by trade, was one of the worst offenders:

"Editer Colonist: You would do a Great Service to the Christian public of Victoria By terning your attention to that disgracefull habbit indulged in By the Butchers of this towne in Keeping there place of Business open on Sunday until half past 10 o'clock it is Shoking for any Chrisanized or rather Sivilized community to Witnes Such Gross wikedness in there midest and more especially Now when one is at there head whom we must call father and rulling the treade of the taown He Surley will Show a Good Exampll by Closing his place of Busness on Sunday.

"First I would Beg to Recmend them that one of old has Said remember the Sabbath day to Keepe it holy and E.T.C. but if the will not do it for the Sake of him who is lord of all the earth and to whome all things belong even the cattle of a thousand hills the should do it for there owen sake it would also Give them health of bodey and Viger of mind to follow with diligance the Busness through the week and it would also Give them a Oppertunity of attending the house of God to here preched Christe and him Crusified and to teast of that fountin of living waters of which if a man drinketh he shall never dye

"Dear Sir you will pleas Give this a place in your valuable paper and my God grant onto you the richest of heaven's Blessing I am yours raply A FRIEND."

Czech Agency Day Late On Bomb News

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Free Czech Information Service said today it had a day and a half world beat on the atomic explosion in Russia—but it didn't get into print until today.

Josef Josten, head of the service, said tonight he gave some London newspapermen reports that had been funnelled to him from Prague on the [illegible]

"We didn't realize we had a world beat," said Josten, "and it wasn't printed in London until after the announcement by the Western Allies."

Josten said he received reports from Prague that:

Six ministers of the Soviet-dominated Czecho-Slovakian Government recently returned from a visit to Moscow. At a homecoming party in Prague one of the ministers disclosed Russia has three atomic plants.

He said that some German and Soviet scientists were killed, but the Russians realized the unexpected blast gave them the secret of the atom bomb.

Treason Trial Staged To Warn Satellites

Europe Today

By KINGSBURY SMITH

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24 (INS).—There is substantial evidence that a main purpose of the Hungarian treason trial of Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk is to convince the people of Eastern Europe that "Titoism" means aiding the war aims attributed to the United States by the Cominform.

Observers at the trial in Budapest believe the proceedings are also aimed against the Nationalist-minded Communists in the Soviet satellite states.

STAGED SPECTACLE

From the beginning Western diplomats have suspected that the spectacle of Rajk and his alleged accomplices condemning themselves with abject confessions was staged to portray Marshal Tito as a tool of the United States.

I am informed by an unimpeachable source that the Soviet Government is seriously concerned over the danger that Tito's nationalist spirit will pervade the satellite states.

This informant made it clear that the decision to try Rajk and his co-defendants publicly instead of liquidating them quietly was prompted by the desire to have the trial serve as a warning against the spread of Titoism.

It is for this propaganda reason that efforts were made during the trial to play up allegations of the accused that the United States was behind Tito and encouraged him, with promises of military support, to seek to separate Hungary and other satellite states from the Soviet bloc.

I was told that the Communist leadership came to the conclusion that Titoism had a definite appeal to the masses of Eastern Europe and especially to some Communist officials who feel, as Tito said, that though they love the U.S.S.R. they cannot be expected to love their own countries less.

Therefore, it was decided the Rajk trial should be held with the view of making Titoism less attractive.

MAY HAVE PLOTTED

After listening to the testimony of the accused, this correspondent considers it is conceivable that the Yugoslavian regime, after Tito's break with Stalin, might have conspired with Rajk and Gen. Gyorgy Palffy to overthrow the Communist Government of Hungary and bring this country under Tito's wing.

It is hardly likely, however, that Tito, as alleged, would have been willing to send the Yugoslav army to support a military coup d'etat in Hungary.

Tito is fully aware that the Hungarian Communist Government has a military alliance with Russia and other satellite states. Yugoslav military intervention in Hungary undoubtedly would have brought the Red army not only to Hungary but straight to Belgrade.

On the basis of my talks with Western diplomats in Belgrade, Budapest, and diplomatic telegrams which I have been permitted to read, I am convinced that there is not a word of truth in the allegations that the United States promised Tito military support if he became involved in a war with Hungary or the Soviet Union.

WEAKNESS OF TRIAL

On of the greatest weaknesses of the trial was the attempt to show Tito as an American agent during and since the war.

This argument overlooks the fact that it was Stalin who insisted the United States and Britain should accept Tito as the Yugoslav leader instead of Gen. Draja Mikhailovich who was Churchill's choice.

It also overlooks the fact that Tito was, until the break with Moscow, the "enfant terrible" of the Communist front as far as the Western Powers were concerned.

His press was the most vitrolic in its attacks on the United States. And further, he personally adopted a bellicose attitude at the time American planes were shot down when they strayed over Yugoslavia.

Even now he has refused to release former Yugoslav employees of the American embassy in Belgrade who were arrested last year and still are being held without trial despite repeated American diplomatic representations.

Under these circumstances, the allegations that Tito was an American agent since the war appear ridiculous.

Oddities

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 24 (AP).—Newark police headquarters had bats in its belfry yesterday.

Shortly after noon, a bat winged its way through the front door, zipped past a stratling desk lieutenant and flapped up the stairs to the third-floor record room.

In the record room five clerks wielded wastebaskets and hat stands in self-defence, but it zoomed into the detective bureau across the hall.

Finally in the casualty squad room on the ground floor a window was open and the bat flew out.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24 (AP).—The thief who broke into the automobile of George N. "forrow, Birmingham, Ala., salesman, probably still is trying to figure things out.

He took two men's suits and two dresses. But the garments have no backs. They were made for use by undertakers in clothing bodies.

Recover Gold From Galleon Off Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24 (AP). — An undisclosed number of solid silver bars have been recovered from a sunken Spanish galleon in the Florida Keys.

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington confirmed the find yesterday and announced it had bought one of the ingots of solid silver weighing 70 pounds.

The find was made by Arthur McKee, city recreation director of Homestead, Fla., last may 30 while pursuing his hobby of making underwater pictures.

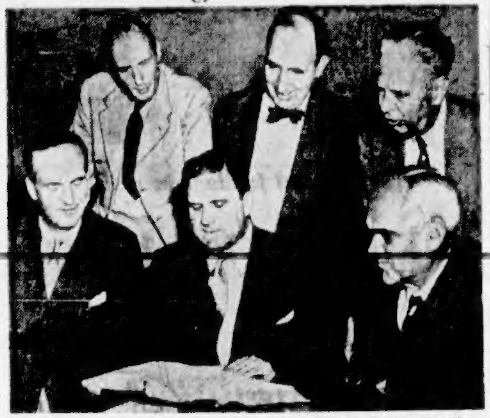
Atomic Energy Talks Under Way



—Central Press Canadian.

Announcement Friday of Russia's possession of atomic bomb has added considerable import to series of "exploratory" discussions now under way in Washington between representatives of United States, Great Britain and Canada on joint research and development of atomic energy. Left to right: British Ambassador Oliver Franks, United States Assistant Secretary of State James E. Webb and Canadian Commerce Minister C. D. Howe. In rear are Sir Derick Hoyer Millar (left), British minister to United States; William Webster, deputy to secretary of defence for atomic matters; and Summer Pike, acting chairman of atomic energy committee.

Running King's Special Train Involves Great Expense, Detail

LONDON, Sept. 24 (CP). — People who envy the King his royal train—a special conveyance that operates independently of ordinary passenger trains—have little idea of the expense involved.

To begin with, the King pays first-class fare for every person traveling on it, including himself, the Queen and members of the Royal household.

He also pays a special train fee of £1 ($3.10) a mile for the running of the train. This is to cover the expense of extra precautions taken when the Royal Family travels abroad.

PATROL BRIDGES

For instance, every bridge under which the Royal train passes has to be patrolled for half an hour before it goes through. Every mile of the line is watched by linesmen and pointsmen. Rail police are on duty at each station the train passes, whether it stops or not.

Officials of British railways travel on the train, checking the timing constantly. They are in telephone communication with the engineer and can tell him to increase or decrease speed as they wish. One thing they always impress on railway staff is: this train is not being run as a record breaker.

There is a dining-room for the Royal family, and another for the officials, as well as sleeping quarters for all. There is a small office, in which the King can attend to state matters en route.

TELEPHONE SYSTEM

When the train stops overnight the telephone system on board is linked up to the national system, so that urgent Government messages can get to the King.

Every railwayman concerned with the running or passing of the train is given a printed notice, 24 hours ahead of departure, giving full instructions as to how the run shall be planned.

The royal train will be in service again September 28 when the King and Queen travel down from Teeside to attend the wedding in London of the Earl of Harewood and Miss Marion Stein.

Oil Company Announces Prices Jump

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (CP). — Imperial Oil Limited today announced Dominion-wide increases in the price of gasoline, kerosene and light fuel oil effective immediately.

Price adjustments, described as due to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar, include a general 1¼-cent increase a gallon for gasoline and kerosene, and one cent a gallon for light fuel oil.

The company announcement said that these adjustments do not take into account the effect of a railway freight-rate increase announced this week and still being studied.

"The effect of devaluation was to increase the cost of crude oil, which represents the largest single expense item in supplying petroleum products," the announcement said.

In Ontario, the retail price of gasoline ranges from 38 to 41 cents a gallon. Kerosene retails at 40 cents.

Crude oil price increases of 20 to 26 cents a barrel "have been made to permit Alberta fields to come back into balance with world prices following devaluation of the Canadian dollar," the announcement said.

Crude price advances are 20 cents a barrel for Redwater and Turner Valley and 25 cents a barrel for Leduc. Previous prices were $3.40 a barrel at Turner Valley, $2.68 at Redwater and $2.95 at Leduc.

Diefenbaker to Ask Bill of Rights Step

Special to The Colonist

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—A reference to the Supreme Court of Canada as a preliminary step to the passage of a bill of rights by the Federal Parliament is called for in a resolution which John G. Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member from Saskatchewan, will place on the order paper of the House of Commons on Monday.

The resolution urges that the Minister of Justice submit for a ruling by the court the question as to the degree to which fundamental freedoms of religion, speech and the press, and the constitutional rights of the individual, are matters of Federal or provincial jurisdiction.

Slated to come up for discussion in the Commons in about two weeks, the preliminary of the resolution asks the House to endorse the opinion that immediate consideration be given to introducing a bill or declaration or rights to assure among other rights:

1. Freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and of Parliament.
2. That habeas corpus shall not beabrogated or suspended by Parliament.
3. That no one shall be deprived of his liberty or property without due process of law and in no case by order in council.
4. That no tribunal or commission shall have the power to compel the giving of evidence by anyone who is denied counsel or other constitutional safeguards.

The resolution stems from the early days of the Russian spy probe initiated in 1945 when more than a score of persons were held incommunicado in the barracks of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Rockcliffe, near Ottawa, for questioning. Mr. Diefenbaker has been protesting for several years it was against the principles of British justice to hold persons, especially when innocent, for interrogation forcibly without being allowed to see their l wyers and with the right of habeas corpus denied them.

City's Chinese Colony Gains in Recognition

Victoria, long famous for its beautiful gardens, is rapidly gaining more and more recognition for its quiet and sedate Chinese colony.

That, at least, is the opinion of Mr. Y. C. Lee, well-known and affable Victoria Chinese.

All along the Pacific Coast—as far south as San Francisco—Victoria's Chinese residents are recognized for their hospitality, says Mr. Lee.

MORE TOURISTS COME

More and more tourists visit us each year, he says.

"They like it here," Mr. Lee explains. "The quiet reserve evident in Victoria is one of our best attractions. In American cities there seems to be a greater trend to "the gay night life" while here, the tourist with a fondness for Chinese dishes can enjoy a dinner in a restrained, yet typically Oriental setting," he declares.

A marked increase in the number of visitors to the city's Chinese sector has been noted since the war, Mr. Lee says. He expects still more business for Victoria from tourists in the near future, explaining that devaluation of the Canadian dollar in relation to United States funds will undoubtedly increase the influx of visitors.

INCREASE NOTED

"Why we've noticed an increase already," Mr. Lee said, with the new currency rates only in effect for a few days.

"It's surprising," says Mr. Lee, "what tourists will ask for. Why, only the other day a couple from San Francisco enquired where they could purchase a good pair of Chinese slippers—and in Victoria."

Gains Made In Treatment Of Cancer

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP).—The ABC's of cancer point to one great way that can be used now to save thousands of lives each year.

It is for every doctor to become a cancer detection unit himself, looking for cancer in patients in his own office.

This is one of the most practical current means of cutting cancer deaths. Much could be done by 100,000 doctors spending 3½ hours a week checking older patients, says Dr. Charles S. Cameron, scientific and medical director of the American Cancer Society.

THREE TREATMENTS

Most cancers can be cured if they are caught early. Surgery, X-rays and radium are the treatments.

The main problem now is to detect them early.

Cancer detection centres are doing a good job. Most of them check only apparently healthy people. One in every 100, on the average, is found to have unsuspected cancer.

There now are 250 such centres in the United States. For real safety, adults should have examinations once a year. People more than 45 should have them twice a year, for 85 per cent of all cancers occur after this age.

Dr. Cameron said:

"Three-fourths of all cancers can be found by looking and by palpation (touching and feeling). They are in accessible places. Personal histories of patients would indicate symptoms suggesting cancers hidden in the body, and these people could have more elaborate tests.

"Such a program would send the death rate from cancer down significantly, and do it within five years."

Boost Order Now in Effect

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (CP).—Board of Transport Commissioners today issued their formal order permitting the railways to increase their freight rates by 8 per cent.

This left the effective date of the increase in the hands of the railways, who now must issue new tariff schedules. The new rates become effective ten days after the railways file their new tariffs with the board.

See Supremacy For Russians

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (INS.)—The Federation of Atomic Scientists said today that Russia can build enough atom bombs in two years to wipe out the supremacy gained by the United States in the last four years.

Physicist Alan Shapley, member of the volunteer committee which operates the Washington headquarters of F.A.S., said that when the Soviets have a "significant number" of A-bombs "it will make no difference if we have 1,000." Shapley added:

"If a war started then, it would mean simple disaster for everybody. We'd really be in a mess."

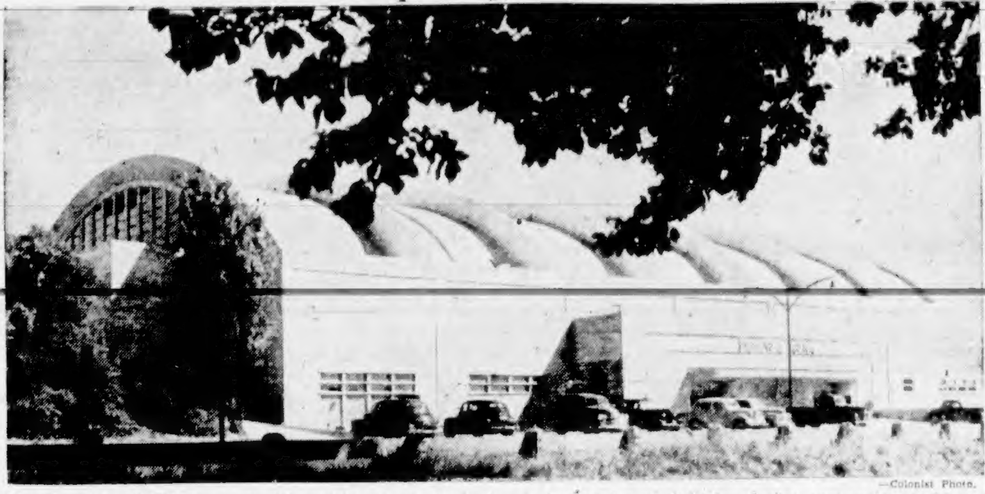
Official Arena Opening to Honor War Dead



—Colonist Photo.

Victoria will officially honor its World War dead with animpressive service of dediction during ceremonies marking official opening of the Memorial Arena today. Picture above shows main entrance to splendid war memorial on Blanshard Street. Attendance at opening ceremonies, which begin at 3 p.m., will be restricted mainly to city property owners. "Open house" will be held this evening when many Victorians will get their first glimpse of magnificent building.

Three Disabled Veterans of World War To Officiate at Dedication of Arena

All City Residents Invited To See Arena Dedication

ALL Victoria residents wishing to attend the dedication and opening ceremony of the Memorial Arena at 3 p.m. today will be admitted with or without programs.

This was announced last night by City Clerk Frank Hunter.

Previous arrangements required that persons intending to attend the ceremony pick up admission programs at the Arena box office before 5 p.m. yesterday.

However, it is expected that the Arena's 7,400-seat capacity will provide adequate accommodation for all spectators.

The three most important officials to take part in the dedication ceremonies marking the official opening of the city's Memorial Arena will be the three disabled World War veterans who will unveil the memorial plaque in the foyer of the building.

The arena was built by the city to honor its war dead. The plaque was designed to hold forever the expression of gratitude, already written in the hearts of the people of the city, for the men who sacrificed their lives "in defence of justice, freedom and righteousness."

FOUGHT FOR IDEALS

Though they did not fall with their comrades-in-arms, the three disabled veterans fought shoulder to shoulder with them for the same ideals.

M. L. A. Thompson, who will release the cord holding the black velveteen drapes covering the memorial plaque, served in the R.C.A.F. as a flight sergeant during the World War. He was disabled during Overseas service in 1943.

Assisting him will be C. F. Lawrence, a former Army captain. He served with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from 1927 to 1948 when he was discharged with a war disability. During the World War he served in England, Italy and Holland.

The third member of the unveiling party will be G. H. Manifold, who did Atlantic convoy duty with the R.C.N. during the Great War.

SELECTED BY LEGION

To honor their fallen comrades these three veterans were selected by the Canadian Legion.

Following the unveiling of the plaque, 12 wreaths will be placed below it by Lieutenant-Governor Charles Banks; Mrs. Rachel Williams, representing war-bereaved mothers; Rev. W. R. Ashford, vice-president, Victoria Ministerial Association; Premier Byron I. Johnson; Mayor Percy George; Commander J. C. I. Edwards, C.V.E., R.C.N., senior naval officer, H.M.C.S. Naden; Lt.-Col. A Perron, E.D., commander, Victoria and Esquimalt Garison; Group Captain J. A. Easton, O.B.E., R.C.A.F., Group Commander, 12 Group Headquarters; Major Charles Fallas, Victoria Zone Commander, Canadion Legion; Mrs. O. B. Elliott, 2nd vice-regent, Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E.; Paul Meyer, United States Consul to Victoria; R. K. Vood, president, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

By means of a public address system, the unveiling ceremony will be described to the assembly which will remain in the arena proper.

OFFICIALS PARTICIPATING

Officials taking part in the general ceremonies within the arena proper will include Mayor George; Alderman Edward Williams, chairman of City Council's arena committee; Flt.-Lt. R. P. Condon, group chaplain, No. 12 Group, R.C.A.F.; Command Chaplain G. L. Gillard, M.B.E., R.C.N.; Hon. Capt. G. D. Kendell, chaplain of the Department of Veterans' Affairs Hospital; and F. N. Cabeldu, chairman of the Memorial Arena Commission.

Detachments from the 5th B.C. Coast Regiment, R.C.A., the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's), the Royal Canadian Navy, the Victoria and Esquimalt Army Garrison and the Royal Canadian Air Force will march to the arena to take part in the opening ceremonies.

VETERANS TO ATTEND

A representative group of veterans from the Victoria Veterans' Hospital will also attend the ceremonies.

The ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. Officials announced yesterday that the seats which are not filled by holders of admittance programs by 2:45 p.m. may be occupied by the general public.

Where blanks occur in the tables the tide rises or falls continuously during intervening times between the high and low waters as given. 0.6 foot must be subtracted from the heights in these tables to conform with the datum of soundings in the charts of the locality.

Dominion Plans to Nationalize All External Communications

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (CP).—Transport Minister Chevrier said today the Government will spend $4,500,000 to nationalize all external communications systems operating in Canada. Domestic communications will not be involved.

A Crown company, to be known as Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation, will be set up to administer the property and equipment of Canadian Marconi Company of Montreal and Canadian interests of Cable & Wireless Ltd., a United Kingdom company. Nobody has been selected yet to head the corporation.

A resolution preliminary to introduction of a bill establishing the company today was placed on the order paper of the Commons. Full details will not be known until the bill is introduced, probably next week.

INTO LINE

If passed, the bill will bring Canada into line with other members of the British Commonwealth. The United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Southern Rhodesia already have obtained the necessary legislation and put it into effect. Object of the move is to co-ordinate the telecommunications systems of the entire Commonwealth.

An official said one result should be the provision of communications services in isolated parts of the Commonwealth where it might not be economic or financially possible if the particular area was not part of the entire Commonwealth plan.

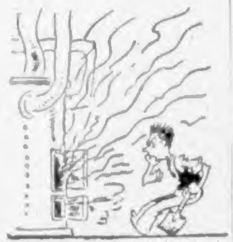
Pending details of the bill, the resolution said the legislation will allow payment by the treasury of such additional monies "as may be appropriated by Parliament for the capital purposes of the corporation."

It added: "The Minister with the approval of the Governor-in-Council (Cabinet) to be authorized to lend from time to time monies to the corporation . . . for temporary purposes, the aggregate outstanding at any time not to exceed $100,000."

As in the case of the C.B.C. and the Canadian National Railways losses suffered by the proposed corporation will be covered by Parliamentary appropriations and profits would be paid to the Federal treasury.

Thyroid Gland Like Draft in Furnace

By DR. J. B. WARREN



There are many individuals in whom the thyroid gland in the neck has been stimulated to too much action (by infection, shock, worry) and so too much thyroid juice is manufactured and gets into the blood. The result is like a forced draft in the furnace; all the body processes, including the heart, work more rapidly than normal. This increased action causes rapid heart beat, nervousness, indigestion and bulging eyes. By removing cause of this overactivity or removing all or part of the thyroid gland, body processes are slowed down.

Victorians' Opinions Aired On Town Meeting Tonight

This Week's Radio

Many Victorians will be able to hear their own voices over Radio Station CJVI at 6:30 p.m., tonight, when a recording of Town Meeting's Victoria visit is broadcast.

The program, first in Town Meeting's trans-Canada tour, was sponsored in Victoria by The Daily Colonist. Some [illegible] attended to hear four speakers discuss the topic: "Has Socialism Failed in Britain?"

SOME DISAPPOINTED

Lack of time robbed many audience members of the chance to speak, but listeners will hear many others prod the four speakers with sharp questions from both sides.

Speakers were Arthur Turner C.C.F. M.L.A. for Vancouver East; Walter R. Dent, editor of the B.C. Financial Times; Dr. J. M. Thomas, principal of Mount View High School and L. W. Makovski, writer and lecturer.

SYMPHONY RETURNS

The Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, directed by Jacques Singer, will start a 23-week Winter season on October 10. It will be the orchestra's third season on a full-time basis.

The regular hour-long symphony concerts will be broadcast coast-to-coast Sundays at 3:30 p.m. The "pop" concerts will be on Tuesday nights at 9:15 p.m.

The Sunday programs will feature six internationally famous artists and major choral works featuring the Vancouver Symphony chorus of 150 voices.

TIMES REVISED

Don't trust to your memory.

Today radio schedules will be radically altered because of the return to standard time. To avoid disappointment, consult the radio schedules for possible new times.

SEVENTH SEASON

Stage 49 has become Stage 50 and tonight will start its seventh season under the direction of its originator, Andrew Allan.

Lister Sinclair's adaption of "The Birds," a comedy by Aristophanes, will be the first item heard this season. The programs will be heard each Sunday at 6 p.m.

* * *

SCRIPT CHANGE

Jack Carson will sit out most of this season, the early part of it for certain. When he returns it will be in "situation comedy" not the straight joke-telling variety.

FAVORITE BACK

The Bob Hope and Phil Harris shows came back last week.

Back on the air again today after Summer holidays will be "American Album of Familiar Music," "Adventures of Sam Spade," "N.B.C. University Theatre."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will return for its second season of "Dress Rehearsal" programs Monday, October 3, conducted by Charles Munch.

Tuesday, October 4, Milton Berle comes back, followed on Thursday by "The Aldrich Family" and the "Screen Guild Theatre."

"Lum and Abner" will be back about October 15 on a C.B.C. sustaining program. Sponsorship for the veteran team will follow a few weeks later. They will have a half-hour show.

CROSBY RECORDINGS

Despite what you hear, Bing Crosby has no recording equipment at his ranch in Elko, Nevada. Instead, he makes his transcriptions at the Elko radio station. Hollywood guest stars travel there for the cuttings.

NEW SERIES

Now in his 70th year, and at the peak of his powers, the acidulous Sir Thomas Beecham will be the central figure in a new Sunday C.B.C. series.

A man with a reputation for giving his audience a sound tongue-lashing — for applauding at the wrong time, for coming in late, for example—Sir Thomas will this time devote himself to talking to his audience.

But this time he will be introducing and commentating upon recorded masterpieces, with such guest stars as William Walton, Moira Shearer and Sir Osbert Sitwell.

Among his projects will be the promotion of his theory that classical music is not essentially a "long hair" business and that listeners can have fun with it.

* * *

Natalie Minunzie will start a series of five C.B.C. recitals Friday at 10:15 p.m. The popular mezzo-soprano will be accompanied at the piano by Genevieve Carey.

World Heads for Warm Period As 2,000-Year Cycle at End

WASHINGTON, September 24 (NANA)—The world is getting warmer and the end result may be a new "dark age" for the United States and Central Europe. This gloomy forecast is contained in a comunication to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here by Dr. Clarence A. Mills of the University of Cincinnati's Laboratory for Experimental Medicine.

It now is clearly established, he says, that the world goes through hot and cold cycles of about 2,000 years each. There have been five of these cycles in the last 10,000 years, only two of which fall within recorded history.

LONG WARM PERIOD

The next to the last cold period was the time of the high civilizations of Greece and Rome. There followed 1,000 years of warmth when grains could be ripened in Iceland. This was the time of the "Dark Ages" over most of Europe. Temperatures in Norway and Sweden, however, were about the same as in Greece 1,000 years earlier and there was a great upsurge of human activity and adventure. This was the time of the Vikings and of the Sagas.

Then Far Northern Europe, Iceland and Greenland, became too cold for comfort and the climate of Central Europe got cooler—resulting in the Renaissance. This period has about come to an end, Dr. Mills says.

"Once again," he goes on, "temperatures are surging irregularly upward, reaching levels in 1930 about as high as prevailed 1,000 years earlier. All records available indicate that earth temperatures have been rising for a full century, bringing definitely milder Winters and the long Summers of depressive heat that sap human energy and change the course of nations.

CREEPING NORTHWARD

"The same semi-tropical lethary, which earlier engulfed the Mediterranean countries of Europe, is today creeping northward over the United States and Central Europe. Later onset of maturity in girls and smaller adult stature in American college youth have replaced the trend of recent centuries toward earlier maturity and ever better physique.

"In the Carolinas the reversal came with children born in 1918, in the Cincinnati latitudes a little later and in Wisconsin it still remains only an indefinite hint. It is especially significant that this physical downturn should have occurred at a time when the production and distribution of foodstuffs were at all-time peaks and when the greatest emphasis was being laid on child care and nutrition. Children now have fewer illnesses and grow faster in their early years than ever before, yet the adults stature is showing definite evidence of decline.

Dentistry College to Give Courses Over Telephone

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (AP).—Will the college campus of the future be a telephone booth?

This Autumn the University of Illinois College of Dentistry in Chicago will provide postgraduate courses for some 7,000 dentists who won't be in Chicago. They will be in 135 other cities getting their instructions by telephone.

The idea started in 1947 when Dr. Saul Levy, a Scranton, Pa., dentist, called Dr. Robert G. Kesel at the university dental school here. Dr. Levy said he wanted to attend the postgraduate course on control of tooth decay but couldn't spare the time to travel to Chicago.

"Why," he asked, "can't I hear the lectures by telephone?"

The result: Dr. Levy and 19 other Scranton dentists met in the Chamber of Commerce building on class nights, got out lantern slides and charts that had come in the mail, hooked an amplifier to the telephone, and listened. They didn't miss a word.

Word of the innovation got around in the profession. Other dentists in town outside the big dental school centres became interested. Classes-by-wire were brought to dentists in Scranton and New Iberia, La., in the Spring of 1948. There was a six-city hookup in Illinois last Fall.

But that was only a starter—and a small one, at that. The university, starting October 10, will put on a postgraduate educational series that will reach 135 cities in 38 states and two in Canada over telephone lines.

SIX SESSIONS

There will be one session a month for six months. Each will start at 8:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time and will last two hours. They will originate at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

There will be a different subject each month but the general theme is "current advances in dentistry." The object is to bring dentists up to date on the latest developments in their field.

Six speakers will be heard on each program. They are research men, teachers practising dentists and specialists from a score of cities and universities. Each will speak six or seven minutes. A round-table discussion will follow.

Dr. Isaac Schour, director of postgraduate studies at the University of Illinois dental school, figures 7,000 dentists will be on the listening end. Each pays $10 for the full series. They will gather about loudspeakers in dental society quarters or meeting rooms in their home towns.

"This is mass professional education by an all-star faculty," Dr. Schour said. "It will be on a national basis. If and when the mechanics are worked out, it may become international.

"Most dentists can't come to a university, so now the university comes to the dentist.

"Every profession—medicine, engineering and the others—has a similar postgraduate problem. This may be the answer."

Psoriasis

A New Concentrated Prescription Found

Psoriasis is a chronic skin eruption characterized by circumscribed red, scaly adhesions. We do not know that a cure for Psoriasis has been found, but this prescription will clear the skin for approximately six months to one year. The prescription is a clear, colorless and odorless liquid and it contains no oil or grease. Clothing and linens cannot be stained or marked. Application is simple. The affected parts are washed with a pure soap and warm water, the prescription Exoff Concentrated is then patted on with a small swab of cotton—apply night and morning.

Your druggist can supply you with this prescription. Simply ask for about 3 ozs. of Exoff Concentrated. Cut this out as a reminder—it is well worth a trial.

Two Outstanding New Books

'The Wooden Horse'
By ERIC WILLIAMS

Here is a tale with irresistible appeal common to all truly great stories of human adventure and endurance. It is the story of a "Classic" escape "Classic" because it was conceived on lifting the Wooden Horse Legend from Ancient Greek and adapting it to modern times. Underlying the adventure is the great spirit of companionship which seems to be born under conditions of extreme hardship. 3.00

'On the Highest Hill'
By RODERICK HAIG-BROWN

Here is the new novel by our well-known Vancouver Island author. It is a subtle and significant novel and a dramatic one, which speeds the reader on with steadily mounting tension to a climax of almost unbearable suspense — in this story the writer displays a sensitive understanding of the human heart and an exceptional sense of dramatic narrative. 3.25

British and Empire News

To Cheer or Not to Cheer?

—Central Press Canadian.

While economists point out ultimate benefits of devaluation of British pound, British workmen, reading that price of bread and other imported commodities will increase, do not know whether to cheer or criticize. Many powerful United Kingdom unions have announced they will ignore Labor Government's wage-freezing plans and go after higher wages to balance increase in their cost of living.

Westminster Preparing To Boost Civil Defences

LONDON, Sept. 21 (CP). — The City of Westminster, centre of government and home of the Royal Family, is quietly reviving its Civil Defence organization.

In a building across the street from Westminster Abbey, key personnel are being taught protective technique against the atom bomb and new war gases. In November, mass recruiting of Civil Defence workers will begin.

The Royal Borough, whose No. 1 citizen is King George, seeks to give a lead to the country in civil defence. Officials believe in the maxim: "The better prepared for defence, the less chance of war."

BACK ON JOB

Clifford Ratcliffe, who trained Westminster's Civil Defence workers for the German blitz, is back on the job. He has just completed a refresher course at the Home Office training centre in Gloucestershire.

There, a model of devastated Hiroshima has been devised to provide a realistic setting for training in atom war defence.

Westminster's setup is less spectacular. Besides classrooms, it includes fire-fighting demonstration facilities, a gas chamber and a gas compound. In the gas compound the new war gases and their behaviour are studied.

DANGEROUS NERVE GAS

"One of these is nerve gas," said Ratcliffe. "It is more dangerous than any we've known. It causes convulsions and paralyzes the nerves."

The gas mask, familiar but seldom used in the last war, is expected to be of vital defence importance in any future conflict. It will afford protection against atom particles and mass-produced germs which may be used to spread epidemics.

Scotland Yard To Be Featured On Air, Screens

LONDON, Sept. 24 (CP). — Britain's world-famous Scotland Yard will be featured both in radio and movies during the next few months.

This Fall, the B.B.C. is broadcasting a new crime series which takes listeners behind the scenes at Scotland Yard and demonstrates how different types of crime are tackled. Certain scientific methods of crime detection are, however, being cautiously withheld from the listening public.

In the new British movie, "The Blue Lamp," Scotland Yard is being "starred" for the first time in movie history. Most of the action takes place in and around the big, grey Yard buildings standing between the Strand and the Thames Embankment.

PROFESSIONAL PLAYERS

One scene is staged in the information room and filming is interrupted periodically when genuine calls come through and the temporary actors must go back to their normal daily work.

A Hollywood company is also preparing a Scotland Yard movie drama which will be made in Britain. American and British actors will be used.

Commandos to Get Horses From U.S.

CAPETOWN, Sept. 24 (CP).—To provide more and faster horses for its rifle commandos, the South African Government has decided to import new blood from the best ranches and riding clubs in the United States.

Special attention may be given to the type of horse which in America is widely known as the "quarter" horse—a breed which is used on cattle ranches and for long cross-country trips.

ST. IVES, Huntingdon, England (CP).—Bait used by St. Ives Angling Society to attract 80 entries to its annual children's fishing competition consisted of ginger-pop, buns and ice cream.

New House of Commons for U.K. To Be Completed in Six Months

LONDON, Sept. 24 (CP).—Britain's new House of Commons is rising on the ashes of the old, and builders hope another six months will see the job completed.

Half hidden from public view by Westminster Hall, the shell of the new Chamber is taking shape in steel and stone. If present schedules are maintained, it will be ready for members by March 31, 1950.

Except for air-conditioning and loud-speakers, it won't be much different from the House that German bombs reduced to rubble May 10, 1941, one of Britain's worst blitz nights.

WINNIE'S WAY

Because "Winnie wanted it that way," the old graceful Gothic style of achitecture is being preserved.

Some members suggested an up-to-date, streamlined building outside London. But Winston Churchill held out for the traditional, oblong chamber fashioned by Sir Charles Barry when the present Houses of Parliament were built 100 years ago. The Conservative party leader won his point.

The roof and panelling will be in oak, grey this time instead of the old dark varnish. Set pieces of furniture are being supplied by Commonwealth countries as symbolic contributions. Canada's gift is to be the Speaker's table, made of white oak.

More than 100,000 cubic feet of creamy yellow limestone will be used in the new home of Britain's 640 members of parliament. It comes from a quarry in England's smallest county, Rutland, and replaces the Yorkshire stone previously used.

JIG-SAW PUZZLE

Every block of stone, which mellows through the years into a silver grey tone, has to be passed by a stone inspector before it goes to the building site on the Thames River. Every block has its own number in the builders' blueprints.

On the site, each stone fits into the general pattern like pieces in a jig-saw puzzle.

As the new House nears completion—members now sit in the House of Lords chamber—renovation continues on the 360-foot tower of the Houses of Parliament. The job of restoring the 11-story tower, expected to last several years, was started after deep cracks were found in the outside face.

Secret Haunt Of Smugglers Soon No More

RYE, Sussex, England, Sept. 24 (CP).—A secret smugglers' passage at the "haunted" Standard Inn, where three years ago police hunted a ghost, is soon to disappear.

Workmen will demolish the centuries-old sloping roof at the back of the inn and replace it with a modern flat roof.

"A secret passage runs through the old roof to neighboring buildings," said landlord Thomas Eastwood, "but the rafters have rotted and the difficulties in replacing the timber mean that it must go.

Police were called to the inn in 1946 when Eastwood complained that furniture in the rooms was continually "being moved about at night and drawers and cupboards ransacked."

No explanation was ever found. Eastwood says the place is still haunted.

Bar Key Posts To Communists In New Zealand

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Sept. 24 (CP)—An unequivocal statement that no Communist will be allowed to hold any key post in the New Zealand civil service where it would be possible to do harm through disloyalty has been issued by Prime Minister Peter Fraser.

The Government had always stood for the fullest political rights for all employees, he said, but Communism of the Moscow brand was another matter.

PROVED NOT LOYAL

Political rights covered socialism, nationalism and Toryism in varying degrees, for those who proclaimed such principles were first loyal to their countries. Communists, who took their principles from Moscow, were not loyal to their country—what happened in Canada had proved that, he said.

"We certainly will not permit anyone holding those doctrines to occupy a position in the military forces, in scientific research, in the External Affairs Department, or anywhere else where they can be entrusted with secret information," Mr. Fraser added. "That does not mean that they will be debarred from earning a living, but they will not be permitted in positions which demand loyalty and where there may be a risk that they may do harm to the country."

Although upholding the principle of the fullest rights for civil servants, the Prime Minister at the same time advised them that "it might be foolish for a very highly placed officer to identify himself with a political party."

CITES DIFFICULTIES

He cited difficulties that had arisen in Australia when the leader of the opposition, R. G. Menzies, had stated that if he were returned to office he could have no confidence in a senior public servant who had declared himself against him. However, Mr. Fraser added, nothing of that sort had occurred in New Zealand and he did not see any likelihood of it in the future.

Home-Made Lung Aids Polio Victim

COVENTRY, England, Sept. 24 (CP).—A home-made iron lung constructed by a Coventry engineer from plywood, sponge rubber and a length of vacuum-cleaner hose, is helping to restore the health of his 14-year-old daughter, an infantile paralysis victim.

When she contracted the disease, Ann Evans was placed in a full-length iron lung in Coventry Hospital. Doctors said she would do better in a chest-type lung which would permit massage of her limbs. But there was only one such lung in England—in London.

Her father, A. F. Evans, went to London, studied the chest lung and noted how it worked. Then back home in his garage he constructed a model which worked perfectly when given a trial at the hospital.

Now Ann, her chest encased in the lung made by her father, is making progress toward recovery and is getting the daily massage treatment doctors say is necessary and which the hospital's full-length equipment would not permit.

When Ann recovers, Evans says, he's going to give his home-made lung to the hospital.

Report Threat To Antelope

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 24 (CP).—The sable antelope, an attractive feature of South Africa's wild life, is threatened with extinction in the low country north of Johannesburg, through the depredations of poachers and native hunters.

Principal reason is that the sable exposes itself more to the hunter than any other type of game, falling victim to the native hunter's spear.

One farm owner said the sable herd on his land had dwindled from 1,000 to less than 50 in the last 20 years. This owner, with neighbors, had formed a private game reserve and declared legal war on the poachers. The farmer himself has admitted to shooting out the headlights of a poacher's motor car.

Feudal Estate Sold After Six Centuries

DUNSTER, Somerset, England, Sept. 14 (CP). — Geoffrey Fownes Luttrell, 62-year-old squire of four Somerset villages, called his tenants to 13th-century Dunster Castle and told them: "I have had to sell the castle and most of the village."

The Luttrell family has held the castle and the 8,500-acre estate for nearly 600 years.

The squire blamed death duties, high taxation and the "confiscatory provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act" for what happened.

"I have taken a lease of the castle and some of the land for five years," he said. "Then I must leave the castle but I shall carry on farming."

Included in the estate is the major part of four villages with 1,500 inhabitants — Dunster, Carhampton, Withycombe and Rodhuish.

Buyer is the Ashdale Land & Property Company, with offices in London. No price was disclosed, but it is believed to be around £40,000 ($124,000).

It has bought the estate as a commercial proposition and will get the rents of the farms, stores and cottages. Arrangements have been made to protect old retainers of the Luttrell family, who live rent-free.

Schiaparelli Shows First Casual Collection in U.S.

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (INS)—The name "Madame Schiaparelli" sparks the eyes of women and spikes the conceit of competitors—but it belongs to a woman who washes her own lingerie.

This woman, the grand dame of Paris designers, was in New York today to open her first collection of costly [illegible] for American women.

16-INCH SKIRTS

Amid a flowery, [illegible] reception, Elsa Schiaparelli gave her best fashion predictions — 16-inch skirts, shorter jackets, higher hats. She complimented the American designers—Hattie Carnegie, Valentina, Lilly Dache. And she went through all the formalities: shook hands, talked and [illegible] champagne.

But through it all she looked like the restless person she's always been: an energy-burning dynamo who'd rather work at anything, even slip-sudsing, than [illegible].

She whispered confidentially: "Some people think I keep going 24 hours a day, but it's not true. I work 26."

"The Schiap," as she's called in respectful slang by those she knows and those she doesn't, told a few behind-the-fashion-scene secrets, including why she has "never quite gotten used to the pomp" that goes with big-time designing.

SCHOLARLY FAMILY

She said she came from a family of scholars and before she was ten years old could speak English, French, German and Italian.

She also knew which stars were which and what ancient mummies had been dug up in Egypt. Her father was dean of the University of Rome and her two uncles became famous for Egyptian archaeology and astronomy.

"Then at 14," she said, "I published my first book of poetry."

The poetic incident which brings a grin to the madame's piquant face is best forgotten, she said. Why?

"Because the poems dealt vaguely with the art of love," she confessed, "and my father popped me into a convent after they were published. I haven't felt smug about anything I've done since."

From the convent Elsa ran off to America, where she met a Yankee, married him, had a daughter and divorced him. Her daughter was officially called "Gogo"—a name which came from the first words the baby spoke.

When the youngster was two years old Schiaparelli returned to Paris and began knitting svelte-looking sweaters for her friends. Since she was "a bit desperate" for support, she accepted an offer to make them for money.

Today, with her style supremacy recognized and her financial security assured, "Schiap" says she is still leading a hectic pace—and loving it.

"If I could work faster," she said grinning, "I could get younger, faster."

She looks younger than her age, a reckless statement to make since nobody knows, probably not even Schiaparelli, how old she is. Her daughter, now married to a Long Island businessman, [illegible] she re-[illegible] age 20 years ago.

"Mother," she recalls, "always said 'My dear, I am exactly 90 years old,' and let it go at that."

Regardless of the designer's age, she is chic in a size 12; delicate at 112 pounds; petite at 5' 4", and only slightly greyed in her brown coiffure.

As Madame Schiaparelli puts it: "When I do get old, everyone will know it.

"I will go [illegible] and introduce a joke of a fashion like that awful so-called 'new look' was!"

"Substitute Mechanical Heart-Lung" Now Being Transformed to Reality

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24 (INS). —The dream of heart surgeons—a "substitute mechanical heart-lung" —is being transformed into reality by the skillful hands of a noted Philadelphia surgery professor.

For years surgeons have sought a safe means of halting the flow of blood through the heart while operations were being performed on it.

The answer to their quest may lie in the work of Dr. John H. Gibbon, Jr., professor of surgery and director of surgical research at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

Dr. Gibbon has been working for the past 15 years on a "substitute mechanical heart-lung." It has not been perfected to the point where it can be tested on human beings but it was recently considered sufficiently promising by the United States Public Health Service to win [illegible] award [illegible] further work.

MAY PROLONG LIFE

His machine, if perfected, could not only take over the vital functions of the human heart and lungs during an operation, but also has promise of prolonging life in certain types of heart disease and aiding in reviving persons struck down by heart failure.

Dr. Gibbon's first progress attracted wide attention in 1939 when he reported to a medical meeting that his machine enabled him to by-pass heart and lung functions on cats, without affecting the animals adversely, for periods up to 20 minutes.

Now, after tireless efforts, his machine can perform the same functions on dogs for as long as 46 minutes with survival of the animal in healthy condition.

Dr. Gibbon's machine consists of two parts, the apparatus itself and a control panel, each of which is as large as a piano.

VEINS CLAMPED

Blood is pumped from the body into a long drum-like cylinder which rotates 50 to 100 times a minute. The subject's veins, which return blood to the heart, are temporarily clamped and the blood from these veins is pumped into the machine.

As the drum revolves, the blood splashes against the sides and spreads into a thin film.

Oxygen is pumped into the cylinder and when the blood film absorbs it, it gives off carbon dioxide which escapes at the top of the cylinder. Then the oxygen-refreshed blood is pumped back into the body through an artery. Throughout the process, electrically controlled circuits govern the speed of the pumps, the blood balance and other factors.

Many surgeons believe that if and when it can be applied to humans, it will open the [illegible] of surgery.

Dr. Alfred Blalock, famous for his development of the "blue baby" operation, [illegible] Dr. Gibbon's machine "the most promising development [illegible] search for an artificial heart."

Pretty Wedding At Cathedral

At Christ Church Cathedral on September 10 Rev. A. H. Cummings read the nuptial service uniting in marriage Elizabeth Jean Hutton and Mr. Robert George Whitlock.

The bride, who is the youngest daughter of Mrs. H. C. Edwards, 2941 Prior Street, Victoria, and Mr. J. H. Hutton, 816 Princess Avenue, Victoria, was given away by her father. For the occasion she wore a dusky pink suit with navy accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mr. John Inman supported the groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Whitlock, 2[illegible] San Jose Avenue, Victoria.

While the register was being signed "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" was played.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Strathcona Hotel where the parents of the young couple assisted in receiving the guests. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with [illegible] and [illegible] fern centred the bride's table.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock left for a [illegible] through Washington and Oregon. They will reside at 2[illegible] [illegible] Street.

New Parking Plan For Parksville

PARKSVILLE, Sept. 24.—Parallel parking is being enforced in the business section of Parksville and signs to this effect were erected by the Department of Public Works this week. It has long been felt that this would be advisable in view of increased traffic on the main highways through the village. This parking order is only in effect in the section which faces the main Island Highway.

BIG TOWING EFFORT

The RCN frigate Swansea has completed what the navy described yesterday as the biggest peacetime towing effort in naval history, a 1,[illegible] mile haul along the Hudson Strait.

The Swansea had in tow the RCAF supply ship Malahat, which burned out the bearings of her [illegible] September 15 at Mansel Island in Hudson Bay at the entrance to the strait. The 1,400-ton frigate completed her mission by towing the 200-ton Malahat into Goose Bay last night.

The Malahat was making a regular supply run to RCAF outposts along Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay.

Seek Cure to Stop Jet Engines Gulping Bombs, Bolts and Birds

[illegible] thousands of pounds. The finely-machined rotating [illegible] and turbine wheels turn over as many as 12,000 times a minute. Balance must border on perfection.

Wear from dust and grit on takeoff and from rain or hail in flight damage fine finishes and distort the shapes of engine parts [illegible]. Rain drops exert a [illegible] 1,000 pounds a square inch when encountered at 600 miles an hour.

Another serious danger is the [illegible] gravel [illegible] bolts, nuts [illegible] and [illegible] of jet engines are doing extensive research to eliminate these hazards.

Imagine how much dirt a vacuum sweeper would collect in filling a bag one foot in diameter and 800 miles long! That much air passes through a jet engine in one hour.

NEED SCREENS

One answer is a screen to block foreign matter. But such a screen [illegible] at least five per cent of power during take-off, when power is [illegible]. The screen can be retracted after take-off with no loss of power during flight.

Engineers are seeking a screen that will not cost so much in power, be effective against all types of foreign matter and will dispose of the objects it catches.

Among [illegible] problems in flight include the danger of empty cartridges spit out into space, flying [illegible] debris from aircraft targets.

Ice is the most serious of the worries concerning air intakes while flying. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics has found that formation of ice inside the engine can cause serious loss of power. The typical result of flying jets in icing areas is blocking of the air inlet and a change in the shape of compressor blades due to an ice coating.

One general solution to the ice problem, likely to be worked into new engine designs, calls for heating the air scoop inlets and some compression blades with hot air from the combustion chamber.

[illegible] simple record that Mr Martay will make music any time and any place he can find room to swing a bow.

Not even the World War could separate him from his precious violin, he admitted here last week during a social visit to Victoria. And the rigors the instrument survived as a result of Mr. Martay's single-mindedness were enough to make Stradivarius do a rondo in his grave.

LIVES IN PITTSBURGH

Nowadays the music minded [illegible] settled down to [illegible] with the Pittsburgh Symphony [illegible] there was a time during his four years of service in the South Pacific when he considered it merely routine to pack a violin selection or two for the commander [illegible] the Australian New Guinea forces.

Their particular theatre of war at the time of the impromptu concert was a place "a mile high above the Jap-troubled Coral Sea."

Other of Mr. Martay's war experience included listening to records he had made in Australia played in the depths of a New Guinea jungle and touring army establishments with a little concert orchestra he had whipped up from native Philippine talent.

Perhaps the most exciting event to him in the whole war-torn area was the time a plane took off without him and carried off his precious violin.

PURSUIT

The story at this point becomes quite exciting. According to the account Mr Martay leaped into another airplane and pointed dramatically upward.

"Follow that plane," he cried.

"I was waiting at the next airfield for the plane with the violin to arrive," he says, describing the incident.

He can also be persuaded to tell of his prewar adventures in Europe where he had gone to take lessons from the great [illegible] teachers before they passed on.

VISITED MASTERS

In the laudable effort he visited Hubay in Budapest, Sevcik in Bohemia and Siesch in Berlin.

"All three of them died shortly afterwards," Mr. Martay comments wryly. "Do you think I was that bad?"

He refuses to divulge the name of another famous teacher who died while Martay was [illegible] the way [illegible]

Despite the high mortality rate among the old masters the [illegible] United States [illegible] rates the lessons among the highlights of his life.

And to the lessons learned at the hands of these famous old-time teachers he subscribes much of the success that has attended his concert and radio work on this continent.

Bosox Gain Ground By Blanking Yanks

Kinder Gains 23rd Win With 3-0 Shutout—Cardinals Retain Slim Edge Over Dodgers

Boston's rampaging Red Sox are breathing a little hotter on the necks of the pace-setting New York Yankees in the American League's torrid pennant race today, following their 3-0 whitewashing of the Bronx Bombers at Fenway Park yesterday. The victory, Boston's 60th in 76 games and 20th straight at Fenway Park, cut the Yankee lead to a single game with but seven games left for each club.

The National League race remained the same with St. Louis Cardinals staying half a game ahead of Brooklyn by edging Chicago Cubs, 3-2, while the Dodgers trimmed Philadelphia Phils, 8-1.

ELLIS GETS NO. 23

Ellis Kinder was the major-domo who tamed the Yankee bats. He tossed a six-hitter at the leaders to blank them for the second consecutive time while posting his 23rd victory of the season and 13th in succession. He never allowed more than one hit in an inning, struck out five and walked four. The only extra-base blow was a double by Phil Rizzuto to lead off the eighth but the Yankee speedster was left stranded.

Ed Lopat, the first of 23 enemy lefties to go the distance at Fenway Park this season, was nicked for two runs in the second and Ted Williams' 42 homer in the third.

PARNELL VS. REYNOLDS

A victory for Boston today will enable the Bosox to enter Monday's game at Yankee Stadium sharing a first-place tie. Manager Joe McCarthy will throw baseball's leading pitcher—24-game winner Mel Parnell—against the Yanks this afternoon. Casey Stengel will counter with Allie Reynolds, who has won 17.

DON APPRECIATIVE

It was 'Don Newcombe Night' at Ebbets Field and the big negro hurler, working with only two days rest, responded with a four-hitter as he pitched the Dodgers to their triumph over the Phils. The only run off Newcombe was a round-tripper by Andy Seminick with two out in the ninth. It was the 16th victory of the season for the giant hurler, who was the recipient of gifts ranging from a 1950 Buick downward.

The Dodgers got to rookie, Jocko Thompson for a run in the second and routed him with four more in the third. Roy Campanella belted his 22nd homer in the sixth and Carl Furillo hammered his 17th, with one aboard, off Ken Trinkle in the seventh.

Gerry Staley had a four-hit shutout for St. Louis going into the ninth, but successive singles by Frankie Baumholtz, Hal Jeffcoat, a force-out, and singles by Bob Burgess and Bill Serena scored two runs for the Cubs and sent Ted Wilks in to save the game. Wilks made Herman Reich to fly to centre and struck out Roy Smalley to end the game.

Stan Musial's two hits in three appearances moved him into contention for the batting crown with a .336 average. Enos Slaughter, however, lost more ground to Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson by going hitless in four trips while Robinson garnered one for four. Robinson now leads with .343 against Slaughter's .340.

Warren Spahn of Boston became the National League's first 20-game winner by defeating New York Giants, 6-4, while aiding his own cause with a home run. Boston's other five runs came on three consecutive homers by Bob Elliott.

Detroit Tigers moved closer to clinching third place in the American League by taming Cleveland Indians 8-5, as Hal Newhouser weathered a five-run first inning, while Bob Feller went down to his 14th defeat.

Ashe Winner of Trophy With Aggregate of 287

Sgt. Albert E. Ashe yesterday won the Weller-Regan Trophy and souvenir ash tray with an aggregate score of 287 points out of the 305 points possible in the three-stage competition.

The veteran Canadian Scottish marksman commenced the third stage with 193 points from the two previous Saturday afternoon matches at Heals Range, and turned in an outstanding 94-point score yesterday at the 900 and 1,000-yard distances.

TAKES EARLY LEAD

Carding a beautiful 49 at 900 yards, Ashe gained an early lead on Bdr. Freddie Richardson of the 5th Regiment, who ticketed a 46 to add to his 193-point aggregate, and on Bdsmn. Frank Drysdale, who was able to add a discouraging 40 points to his 192 for the first two stages.

The final count after the 1,000-yard contest showed Ashe to be well in front with a nine-point lead over Drysdale and 2-Lt. Arthur Sherwin of the 5th Regiment, who were tied with 278 points. Drysdale's 46 at 1,000 against Sherwin's 43 broke the tie in the count-out and Drysdale was awarded the British Columbia Rifle Association bronze medal as runner-up.

Constable Harold Cresine of the 5th Regiment Rifle Association won the Secretary's Trophy for the high tyro with a score of 272 points, and Cadet Bdr. Gerry Ball of the 5th Regiment Cadet Corps won the Cadet Trophy and souvenir with the same score.

At the conclusion of the shoot, Col. T. Moore presented the prizes to the winners, and, in addition to the above, awarded a silver ash tray to Richardson for his high score in the second stage. Major A. F. Evans of the Garrison, and 2-Lt. Arthur Sherwin of the 5th Regiment, received ash trays for the first and third stages, respectively, by reversion from other prize winners.

RECEIVE SPOONS

Cadet P. K. Huus and Cadet Bdr. B. Vint of the 5th Regiment Cadet Corps received sterling silver spoons for their high cadet scores in the first and second stages, respectively, as did Cadet Wylie for his high cadet score in the third stage.

The final shoot of the season will be held next Saturday and will feature a novelty event.

HOW THEY STAND

	W	D	L	Goals F	Goals A	pts
St. Andrews	2	0	0	11	1	4
North Shore	2	0	0	7	4	4
Nanaimo	1	0	1	4	11	2
Victoria United	0	1	1	6	7	1
Vancouver City	0	1	1	7	8	1
New Westminster	0	0	2	1	5	0

Still showing the effects of a too-short and haphazard training season, Victoria United yesterday presented the new Nanaimo entry with its first Coast Soccer League victory. Twice ahead, United finally wound up on the short end of a 3-2 count when the winning goal was headed into the nets by a Victoria defender. The game was played before a small crowd at Nanaimo.

The result left United with one point for its first two starts and gave Nanaimo a split in its first two engagements. The Victorians drew 4-4 with Vancouver City last Saturday while St. Andrews upended the Coal City crew, 9-1.

SEEK KULAI AS COACH

Fully realizing that something will have to be done soon, United officials will hold a meeting at the Douglas Hotel tomorrow night with the hope of persuading George Kulai to take over the coaching chores and to discuss some method of adding needed player strength.

Despite ideal weather conditions, less than 500 spectators turned out. Art Young, playing centre forward in place of the injured Tommy Druce, opened the scoring after taking a pass from Gordie Creed. Wallace Milligan, the former Scottish star who was supposed to be playing for United according to pre-season reports, made it 1-1 before the half.

Victoria went ahead again after play resumed when a goalmouth scramble resulted in their second counter. Joe Travis was credited with scoring. It was all square again when Jack Scott hooked in the second Nanaimo goal after taking a pass from Don White.

PICKBURN THE CULPRIT

United makes its next start on Saturday at Royal Athletic Park with North Shore certain to provide rugged opposition.

Lineups:

Scots, Reds Win Second

VANCOUVER, Sept. 24 (CP).—North Shore Reds and St. Andrews kept pace with each other in the Coast soccer league today as both sides chalked up their second straight victories.

The Reds licked Vancouver City 5-3 at Callister Park while the Scots ventured to New Westminster's Queen's Park, where they blanked New Westminster Royals, 2-0.

Vancouver City made a battle of it for the first half in their tussle with the Dominion champs, holding the winners to a 1-0 half-time lead. They faded badly in the second half, however, as the Norsemen rapped in four fast counters.

Frank Ambler scored the lone marker of the first half converting a pass from Dick Arnster. Vancouver City's Denny Rogers tied it up early in the second half, driving one home from the edge of the penalty area.

Dave Brown, who started at left wing but moved to inside forward when Pete Proctor gave way in favor of veteran Jimmy Spencer, rapped in a pair of quickies to make it 3-1 in favor of the Reds. Ambler and Johnny MacKay boosted the count to 5-1 before Joe Jordan and Ollie Stanley scored to bring the final count to 5-3.

SCOTS BRILLIANT

In the New Westminster-St. Andrews affair, the Scots showed a dazzling passing attack to score two first half goals and then managed to retain the lead though pressed by the losers. Wally Wingrove and Doug Greig scored for the Scots.

End of Trail For Veterans Of B.C. Tracks

VANCOUVER, Sept. 24 (CP).—Horsemen here have been handed a tentative list of horses which will be barred from racing next year on local tracks because of age or infirmities.

The barred list, said to include 30-odd racers, names such horses as Brown Earth, Paper Heels, Ardour, Brown Band, Plucky Boss, Ex Libris, Pompin, Mighty Menace, Blanican, McGregor and others.

Horsemen have referred the list to a committee which will report deletions if owners prove extenuating circumstances caused steed poor displays.

Bolero Breaks Track Record

SAN MATEO, Calif., Sept. 24 (INS).—Bolero, owned by Abe Hirschberg of San Francisco, broke Avisos' fourteen-year-old Bay Meadows track record for six furlongs this afternoon in the $10,000 Added A. B. Spreckels Handicap.

The three-year old son of Eight Thirty in humbling a field of nine older horses, sped the six panels in 1:09 3-5, lowering the old mark, established on November 14, 1936, by one-fifth of a second.

Stamps Run Up Record Score Against Esks

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 24 (CP).—The Dominion Champion Calgary Stampeders tonight piled up their biggest score in two years to defeat Edmonton Eskimos, 41-5, in a Western Interprovincial Football Union contest before 5,000 fans.

The Stamps led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter, 18-0 at the close of the second and 34-0 at the end of the third.

Stampeders' touchdowns were scored by Rod Pantages, Vern Graham, Keith Spaith, Pete Thodos, Sugar Foot Anderson, Frank French and Normie Hill. Graham, top point-getter in the W.I.F.U., converted five of the touchdowns and Walt Chapley made good in one Graham missed.

Edmonton got their points on a major score in the final quarter when United States import Chuck Fenebock tossed a short pass to Andy Goloubef from the Calgary 10-yard line.

Rough Riders Roar Back; Down Bombers

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24 (CP).—Saskatchewan Rough Riders spotted Winnipeg Blue Bombers a converted touchdown and then came roaring back to take a 24-6 decision in a Western Inter-Provincial Football Union game here today.

Del Wardien was the big gun in the Rider attack, passing for one touchdown and dashing 55 yards for a major score. Matt Anthony was on the receiving end of Wardien's touchdown pass. Ken Charlton and Sammy Pierce scored the other Rider majors, with Pat Santucci, import tackle, kicking all four converts.

Bob Sandberg threw a 45-yard pass to Johnny Carpenter for Bombers' touchdown, which Walt Edwards converted.

Despite being kept off the scoreboard, Paul Cholakis, up from the Junior ranks, was the outstanding player in the Blue Bomber line-up, running beautifully and intercepting three Rider pass attempts.

B.C. All-Stars Even Up Final

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP).—The British Columbia All Stars tied up the Canadian Junior Lacrosse final for the Minto Cup tonight when they defeated the Ontario All Stars 9-6 before a crowd of less than 1,000 fans.

The third game in the best-of-five series will be played here on Monday evening.

Prolific scoring by Eddie Bell and shutout goaltending by Vic Grover during the last half, gave the Western champions the win tonight. Ontario held a 6-5 lead at half time, but they couldn't dent Grover's armor after that.

Esquimalt, Legion Score First Wins

District Soccer Opens With Doubleheader—Wests Blanked, 1-0—Vets Edge Heaneys, 3-2

Esquimalt and Canadian Legion marked up the first victories of the season in the Victoria and District Soccer League yesterday, defeating Victoria West and Heaneys, respectively, by one-goal margins in a twin bill at Royal Athletic Park. Esquimalt blanked Wests, 1-0, on a goal by Inside Right Don Robinson with just half a minute left. The young Vets triumphed, 3-2, with all scoring coming in an action-packed first half.

HEANEYS SHOW PROMISE

The second contest between Legion and Heaneys stole the spotlight and provided the 500 spectators with one of the better games in recent years. Both clubs turned in late-season performances but it was Heaneys in defeat who gained the plaudits of the fans with their hustling play and quick recoveries. The youngsters displayed excellent teamwork highlighted by the combination of the forwards. They deserved at least a draw on the play and it was only lack of experience on defence and the great job turned in by Legion Goalie Ed Hardy that cost them the decision.

Opposing centre forwards, veteran Cliff Robbins of Legion and Cedric Robb took the limelight in the see-saw first half. Each netted twice with Robb's second marker, which deadlocked the count at 2-2, coming on a neat effort as he nipped in to drive home a loose ball from 25 feet. The winning goal was scored by Inside Left Dennis McGee ten minutes before the half when Goalie Bill Henderson came out of the nets to stop an attack. Fullback Warren Harrison deflected a hard shot by Robbins and McGee drove the rebound into the open net.

DEFENCE EXCELLS

Cartagemen kept up a terrific pace in the second half and controlled most of the play but every attack was turned back by the strong defensive play of the Legion backs and Hardy. The confident netminder rose to spectacular heights to turn aside several ticketed shots.

The Esquimalt-Wests encounter was dull by comparison although the teams were evenly matched. Greenshirts had the better opportunities but were unable to beat Goalie Charlie Saddler, who proved sound on every test. Robinson's marker was a good effort and had Goalie Norm Richard well beaten on the play.

Better Bowling

By BILLY SIXTY

TAKE IDENTICAL STANCE

Footwork is the foundation of bowling. The stance, the run, and the slide are the three basic elements of footwork. Co-ordinate them and you have body balance, form and skill.

The run consists of three, four, five or more steps that are most natural to take. Trying each will quickly tell you which is best and most comfortable for you. With the three-step delivery, the first step is made with the left foot. In four-step footwork, the right foot leads the way. In five-step action, the left foot, etc. There is no set pattern of footwork, just as there is no definite method of taking the stance, or the starting position. One bowler stands erect while another prefers bending the shoulders slightly forward. The style to adopt is the one that is natural, feels most comfortable. Every bowler should be sure that the stride starts from an identical stance, at an identical spot each time. The slightest variation in the distance of the stance from the foul line will change the finish of the stride and cause poor body balance. Control will then be out of the question.

THREE ON THIRD

Then there was the now famous incident where three Dodgers wound up on third base in a game against the Braves.

Hank Deberry, now a Giant scout, was [illegible] Dazzy Vance [illegible] second and Chick Fewster on first when Herman [illegible] a triple to centre.

Deberry [illegible] but Vance, after rounding third, changed his mind and headed back to third just as Fewster came tearing into the bag and Herman [illegible] with his head down was [illegible] on Fewster's heels.

Fewster stepped off the bag and was tagged out and Herman was doubled trying to get back to second.

Expect Record Tax From B.C. Racing

BRITISH Columbia's Government tax on pari-mutuel betting at horse races this year is expected to equal or break the 1948 record despite a reduction of 1 per cent in the Government's share of the take.

The 70 days of racing at Exhibition Park wound up yesterday but official figures on betting totals and taxation revenue will not be compiled for another month.

However, it is considered certain the overall wagering will be higher than last year's total of nearly $7,250,000. The tax last year totalled nearly $775,000.

B.C. Racing Season Ends; Ab Jr. in Upset Triumph

VANCOUVER, Sept. 24 (CP) — About 15,000 racing fans jammed Exhibition Park here today for the windup of 70 days of racing to watch a Vancouver-owned three-year-old pull one of the most dramatic upsets of the season.

Ab Jr., ridden by Kenny Coppernoll, sprinted to the top away from the gate in the featured $1,500 Alberni Handicap, hit the stretch [illegible] and held on gamely to the wire to beat the fast-closing His Brother by a nose.

RECORD TIME

Ab Jr. was overlooked by the majority of the bettors, going to the post at 5 to 1. But the chestnut colt set a sizzling pace all through the one mile and 70-yard distance, tied the record for the six-furlong distance and then he went on to post a new time for the mile and 70 yards, 1:43 - 1-5 seconds faster than the time racked up by His Brother in July.

Two longshots brought the season to an official close as they moved up through the stretch to run one-two in the eighth race and pay another large Quinela.

Lamouche, with Cecil Webb up, won a two-length victory over Sir Marquett paying $28.60, $13.70 and $7.25. Sir Marquett returned $9.90 and $6.00. The Quinella picked by 119 fans paid $222.70.

MORE FURS FOR MATTHEWS

After the third race Mrs. Jack Ames, secretary of the Vancouver Thoroughbred Association, presented a [illegible] to Herb Matthews, 21-year-old Oakland apprentice who was acclaimed the season's top rider.

Two weeks ago at the close of the regular Vancouver season Matthews won another [illegible] and then went on to increase his margin of wins in the extra two week.

Hamilton Faces Old-Time Jinx In Boxla Finals at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 24 (CP) — If Hamilton Tigers are to successfully defend their Mann Cup lacrosse title here next week against the rampaging Burrard Blue Bombers of Vancouver, they will have to overcome a nine-year-old jinx.

No Eastern boxla squad has been able to win a series in the West since a scrappy St. Catharines, Ont., team defeated Richmond back in 1941 for the coveted mug.

ARRIVE TODAY

Tigers arrive here Sunday in readiness for their opening tilt Monday in the five game series at Vancouver Forum. Second game goes at Queen's Park Arena, New Westminster, on Wednesday.

The rugged Eastern squad which virtually battered New Westminster Adanacs into a quivering pulp in last year's Mann Cup finals in Toronto will likely find their match in the new Western champions.

Coach Johnny Cavallin will rely on the same team that upset the Adanacs in this year's Western final. Blue Bombers blasted their way to a 4-2 games victory in the best-of-seven series.

GREAT NETMINDER

In youthful Walt Green, sensational Burrard goalie, Cavallin has possibly the finest netminder in the Dominion today. Green's superb play practically defeated the Adanac single-handed.

Up front Burrard's attack will be led by veteran Roy Cavallin and Harry Matheson, two great stalwarts for the Blues this year.

Gophers Prove Far Too Good For Washington

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 24 (INS) — Sophomore Hugh McElhenny hustled 97 yards for a University of Washington touchdown on the opening kickoff but bruising Minnesota came back to trample the Huskies 48 to 20 today before a record opening crowd of 58,113 in Minneapolis.

McElhenny's sprint down the sideline on a fake reverse simply touched off a powder keg of Minnesota touchdowns. Four of the touchdowns came in the second quarter.

The golden Gophers led Washington 35 to 14 at halftime, and scored in every period, even with Coach Bernie Bierman testing his quarter.

Minnesota's alert backfield and charging line that averaged 216 pounds per man created its own breaks. Halfback Ralph McAlister intercepted a pass and ran it back for a 39-yard touchdown in the second period. End Bud Grant blocked a punt and returned it

Assault Trails Field of Seven

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (INS) — Donor, with Warren Mehrtens up, won the $25,000 added Manhattan Handicap at a mile and a half at Belmont Park today.

My Request finished second and Stymie third. Stymie was fourth place and the favored Assault was last in the field of seven.

Stymie picked up $1,250 from the gross purse of $29,400 and boosted his earnings to $913,485 in seeking to become the first million-dollar winner in turf history.

Wanderers Roll Along; Trim Huddersfield, 7-1

LONDON, Sept. 24 (Reuters)—Unbeaten this season, doughty Wolverhampton Wanderers held fast today to their leadership of the Football Association's first division, with a smashing 7-1 victory over Huddersfield Town.

Some 48,000 fans packed the Wolves' stadium to see three Wolverhampton goals scored in the first few minutes of play. Battling [illegible] three goals down at the half and in the second half seemed to go to pieces.

LOSE FIRST GAME

Manchester United lost their first match of the season, being beaten 1-0 by Burnley and relinquishing second spot to Liverpool who beat Derby, 3-1, before a record crowd of 56,000. But Liverpool still is four points behind the leaders.

Tottenham Hotspur invaded Leicester City and beating the home defenders 2-1, consolidated their lead in the second division. The Tottenham forwards dominated the game, resisting fierce onslaughts by Leicester forwards toward the close of play.

Swansea Town were ousted from second place by Sheffield Wednesday and West Ham United both at the top of their form. Sheffield, playing at home before [illegible] spectators, trounced Hull, 6-2. West Ham, playing away to Queens Park Rangers, forced a 1-0 victory.

NOTTS COUNTY LEADS

In the Third Division's Southern Section Notts County snatched the leadership with a 1-0 victory over Reading. Reading now shares second spot with Bournemouth who drew 2-2 against Brighton. Norwich City, who beat Swindon 4-0, and Northampton, victors over Torquay 3-1.

Leadership of Northern Section went to [illegible] who maintained their [illegible] record with a 3-0 victory over Crewe.

Doncaster Rovers tying 1-1 with Gateshead established themselves in second place, two points ahead of Gateshead.

In Scotland St. Mirren led Division "A" tying 2-2 with Motherwell. Morton obtained a two-point lead in Division "B" beating Hamilton Academicals 2-0.

Word Out to Watch Richard; Rocket Said Now Jet-Propelled

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Sept. 24 (CP)—A quiet tip-off to five managers of National Hockey League clubs: your usual exhortation to "watch Richard" had better be doubly emphasized this season. From the form he has shown in training camp, The Rocket has kept up with the times and now is jet-propelled.

MAURICE RICHARD

No less an authority than Coach Dick Irvin will tell you that Maurice Richard is stick handling better and controlling the puck better than he has for a couple of seasons.

BACK IN FORM

What's more, Elmer Lach, The Rocket's old line mate, is right back in form. You can judge Richard's form by the training season record. In practice games he has scored 13 goals in a week. Last year he didn't score a goal until the day before the club broke camp. Lach also has counted 13 and so has Adjutor Cote, the hustling centre, up from Sherbrooke Senior Saints.

The intra-squad rivalry, something that is no joke in this camp, produced an 11-7 victory yesterday for the White team over the Reds. It was the freest-scoring game in a solid hour of play with no intermissions since the series began.

NEAR PEAK CONDITION

Although there was a let-down in the latter part of the session the boys are fast reaching peak condition. Lach and Billy Reay, two of the best centre men in the league, flared into a jousting, shoving, swing threatening match that big Butch Bouchard ended by forcing himself between the two.

Coach Irvin cut the squad yesterday, releasing players who have helped out at camp but were expected to be dropped. Young Reg Abbott of Winnipeg, who has shown great promise, is expected to return to the West, probably back with Brandon Wheat Kings Juniors.

GO TO SENIORS

Andy Hebenton and Dewar Thompson, of Winnipeg, will go to Montreal Royal Seniors. Jacques Richard, brother of Maurice, is expected to wind up with one of the Q.S.H.L. teams and George McAvoy of Edmonton, a promising defenceman, will join Montreal National Juniors.

Colin Kilburn of Edmonton, who has been freely used on the line with Richard and Lach, and Gerry Desaulniers and Claude Dolbec up from Royals, will shortly decide whether they will turn pro. If they do, Irvin figures they may be good enough to take on regular jobs with Canadiens and that means that some three others of the squad will have to show their stuff or else.

Offered Fights

EDDIE ZASTRE

Young 22-year-old boxer from Winnipeg who recently won Jack Dempsey Tournament in Toronto, Zastre, has been offered several bouts but no definite plans have been set, Manager Jack Rogers said yesterday. Offers have been received from Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg, but future plans will not be announced until next week. Zastre, outweighed by 29 pounds, won the heavyweight tournament by knocking Jack Herman of Montreal in final round.

Plays, Insignificant in Early Season, Now Loom Large in Pennant Races

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (INS)—These are excruciating moments in the majors. All the sweat and toil and travail of six months come down to pin-point particulars. Plays and misplays that wouldn't rate a word in mid-season now stand out in vivid relief, with millions of dollars riding on the line for the city each jittery player represents.

One begins to grope for the true [illegible] thinness which is the precise bit of weight that broke the back of the camel. But this time it appears that we won't really know until the last day of the regular season—if then.

We tend to scoff now and then at the Riley-type life led by ballplayers. But it takes a lot of moxie to stay in there in a race like this.

HEAVY BURDEN

Joe DiMaggio knew what he was talking about the other day when he said that a tough September drive for a pennant is much more of a burden than playing in a World Series. Mistakes hurt more deeply and often than they can hurt in a World Series.

In a series, at least, no matter how badly you bobble you still wind up with almost as much dough as the winner. But a bobble in September can mean the difference between a series check and the cigarette money of second, third and fourth place.

As of this writing the man who seems to be training hardest for the series is Bill Stewart, the umpire. If he had had his way he probably would have demanded that Jackie Robinson be barred for the rest of the season, he was so mad after Robby suggested that he was choking up in the first game of the crucial Dodger-Cardinal series.

READY TO BITE

He seems to [illegible] his neck bowed and his feelings [illegible] was the [illegible] a year ago when most of us thought he blew that Cleveland pickoff play in the first game of the Braves-Indians series.

If or when the Dodgers blow this one, I think most of them will forever regard that 1-0 game on Wednesday as the killer. That was real rough baseball in which a man dared not breathe for fear of upsetting the superb balance the two clubs maintain right down to the finish.

Did Stewart miss a third strike on Slaughter in the ninth? Most of the Brooklyns, and a surprising number of fans in the hot-bed stands at Sportsman's Field, thought so.

Then Country looped one down the foul line and Luis Olmo, apparently fearing a collision with a Dodger infield, or losing the ball in the sun, let up in his stride and the ball dropped—to his horror—at his feet. For a double. Then a walk, and then a bunt that just [illegible] one out, and the bases were filled.

Could Robby have fielded that last roller through the infield and thrown Slaughter out at the plate? Would the whole picture have been different by that ninth if Miksis hadn't got himself picked off first in Brooklyn's only pretense of a rally against Max Lanier—whom the Brooks had belted out of the box in three previous starts?

HAUNT PLAYERS

As for the American League, we've been moseying around it for 20 years and have seen some close races. But this is the first year I've ever seen as much optimism shown by a second-place team, in the fading shadows of a season, as the Red Sox have displayed.

Tom Yawkey's interview with the Boston American the other day with the Sox two full games out, especially in the loss column and practically no more games to play, was a memorable thing to read. Tom's the least faint-hearted of the owners, and proved it.

Please don't get the impression from the above that all ballplayers are supermen and impervious to pain. Look what happened to Joe DiMaggio when he tried sports-writing. Put him right to bed.

Honest Man Does Forgery As Business

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (CP).—With the aid of a pocketful of fragrant cigars and a battered old fountain pen, John Braungard forges signatures.

He also predicts earthquakes, [illegible] mysticism and [illegible] a stock market tip sheet. But these are his hobbies.

[illegible] signs other people's signatures as a business.

Happily for the cause of law and order, Braungard does all his forgeries for a firm which specializes in getting out letters printed and signed to appear as personal letters. Orders may run from several hundred letters to as many [illegible]. [illegible] appears to have been [illegible] a stenographer and [illegible] the boss.

Braungard studies each signature under a magnifying glass. Then, putting himself in what he terms a [illegible] trance, he surrounds himself with a thick haze of cigar smoke. He writes signatures over and over again with it [illegible].

LEAST LEGIBLE

[illegible] I am busy writing [illegible] be carried [illegible] drift. Braungard says [illegible] experience flashes of [illegible].

The [illegible] forger [illegible] his [illegible] and he [illegible] that was.

THE DEMAND

for plywood booklet has been so great that we have decided to feature this booklet for another week. Additional copies have been received and we hope to be able to supply everybody that requests a copy of the 36-page booklet "The Plywood Way to More Living Space." A den for dad. A sewing-room for mother. A room for junior. Fun room for the whole family. Storage room for "things." How to remodel an attic or basement. Bunks, cupboards, fixtures. How to use plywood. Write, phone or call for a FREE copy.

Sanded plywood. Good one side:
¼" thick, 4 ft. by 8 ft. sheets, each $3.30
⅜" thick, 4x8 ft. sheets, each $4.16
½" thick, 4x8 ft. sheets each $5.06
¾" thick, 4x8 ft. sheets, each $7.08

and remember that we have a complete stock of unsanded plywood. Cheaper and quicker than lumber for exterior or interior work.

ORDERING FUEL

for this Winter? If so, here's how you can save money and order one-third less coal or wood. Insulate with Gyproc wool batts, thick fluffy batts or mineral wool, that really keep out Winter's cold, enclosed with special vapor-proof paper and 16" by 36" handy size that fit snugly into your walls and ceilings. Low in cost, too, giant size carton of 80 sq. ft., only $4.12. And, HOME BUILDERS, don't forget to ask for a loan of our Scotch Insulation Locker to do that job. It's absolutely free. All you spend is a few cents for the staples.

IT'S HERE NOW

Another carload of GYPROC FIREPROOF WALLBOARD. Can't figure out where it all seems to go. The factory tells us they work 24 hours a day on production and we are always prodding them for quicker delivery. It's the quality, we guess. Nothing to touch it for fireproof, strong, rigid, smooth joints, also appearance not affected by dampness, etc. Or perhaps it's the price. Imagine all this and a 4x8 ft. sheet for only $1.92. Walls, filler and tape and a new supply of those broad-bladed knives for filling joints at $1.04 each; and if you want to bring the knives back when your job is finished and they're in good condition, we'll give you your money back.

REMEMBER

Think of us when you need cement, sand, gravel, lime, roofing, wallboards, paint, builders' hardware. If you run a trailer or jalopy for lumber and building supplies we've got a handy space for you to load up off the highway, quick too; self-serve, too.

CHAPTER XVII (Continued)

"[illegible] for everything [illegible] with Lady [illegible]"

[illegible]

[illegible] with her [illegible] down her [illegible] stopped [illegible]

[illegible] Please [illegible] place [illegible] there. [illegible] of America [illegible] All my love [illegible]

At first she stared incredulously at the words with such utter disbelief in their reality that she was only half aware of their significance. As she slowly grasped this the impact of their meaning staggered her. Then she heard someone calling her lovingly but impellingly.

"Ruth! My dear child, are you there?"

[illegible] the one that for years had been dearer to her than any other in the world. She leaped to her feet and ran up the stairs straight into the arms of her step-father Richard Huntington.

CHAPTER XVIII

"You've come on account of Uncle, haven't you, Father?"

"Yes. But don't be frightened Ruth."

"Is he here?"

"No, he hasn't come in yet. But I'm not troubled about that. It's early yet. And I'm glad to have a visit with you before I see him. I've missed you very much."

"And I've missed you. Oh, Father—"

"Shan't we go into the library Ruth, where we can sit down and talk in comfort? I'd suggest a drink too. You look to me as if you needed it."

While they talked Richard Huntington had been [illegible] step-daughter in the direction of the library, his arm still around her. When they reached it, he released her and drew her cape from her shoulders. Then he looked down at the envelope she was still holding. She handed him the radiogram.

With the deliberation which characterized all his movements, he unfolded the message and read it. Then he replaced it in its envelope.

"[illegible]," he said. "That, I suppose would be Russell Aldridge, the [illegible]"

"Yes. Do you know him [illegible]"

"Certainly. But my knowledge of him isn't as comprehensive as I thought it was. I didn't know he was in love with [illegible]"

[illegible]

Well, [illegible] waited a [illegible] Ruth [illegible] it hasn't been for any lack of [illegible] totally. I don't know a [illegible] to Aldridge's discredit—quite the contrary. He's about as fine a [illegible] very much pleased. And I don't need to tell you that whatever pleases your mother generally pleases me too."

[illegible]

they both agreed that it should not be as soon as that. Ruth's mother would want to go to Honduras with her—an embassy wedding would fulfill some of her fondest hopes!—and [illegible] New Orleans.

[illegible]

"Oh, but wait, if you please!" Bunty called. "You are to be part of the secret surprise, Packy!"

"I am?" How, Bunty?"

"[illegible] I may know what [illegible] I don't," said the rabbit [illegible]

"[illegible] when we get deeper into the woods," [illegible] Bunty. "Hurry. Because here come Toodsie and Woodsie and nobody can keep a surprise secret from those twins very long. Hurry!"

Buster, Bunty and Packy the elephant scurried off the raft and into the woods, in time to escape from Toodsie and Woodsie. Those [illegible]

[illegible]

"Oh, yes, I'm here!" Laughed Nurse Jane who, just then, came hopping into the candy kitchen. [illegible]

[illegible] the twins sat on the edge of Uncle Wiggily's amusement raft and paddled their toes in the water of Frog Pond. [illegible] started to make more molasses taffy. And, over in the woods, Bunty was explaining her new secret surprise for Uncle Wiggily, Buster and Packy [illegible]

City Docking Master Has Proud Record

—Marine News—

Having served the company and its predecessors for 42 years, Mr. Daniels has seen 2,784 vessels docked and 40 ships launched since 1910. He is proud of the fact he has been away only 18 days since 1910 and that was through physical disability.

[illegible] was born in County of Essex, England, in 1877 and spent about one year at West Selkirk on the Red River, and Gimli on Lake Winnipeg before coming here in 1907.

The veteran shipyard worker began working for Bullen's Shipyard in 1907 when the Ss. Princess Royal was being finished for the C.P.R.'s British Columbia Coast Service. In April 1910, he was placed on the staff as foreman shipwright, joiner and dockmaster when the only dock on the coast was the small graving dock at H.M.C.S. Dockyard.

Mr. Daniels was still with the company in 1914 when Yarrows took over and again when the Burrard Drydock Company of Vancouver was in charge. He was dockmaster when the Queen Elizabeth was docked in 1942 and remembers that one best of all. Mr. Daniels recalls there were only 12 inches to spare between the ship's keel and the blocks at the bottom.

VESSEL TOTAL LOSS

The 38-foot fishing boat Judy Jane was a total loss last night after fire burned it to the waterline near Charleston, on Coos Bay, Oregon.

The lone occupant of the boat, H. J. Minkler of Charleston, was rescued by the operator of another fishing boat. Coast Guardsmen failed to quench the flames fed by 400 gallons of gasoline.

NEED ONLY CARGO

The new Oregon-Alaska Navigation Co., which wants to establish a ship line to the Orient and Alaska, said yesterday it had everything it needs but cargo.

George S. Quigley, Seattle, traffic representative of the firm, asked port and Chamber of Commerce officials here to help the firm obtain Government contracts for shipping wheat, phosphate and other cargo.

Quigley said the firm is incorporated in Oregon and can charter ships from the Maritime Commission as soon as it obtains some shipping.

PACKER GROUNDED

The 51-foot fishpacker China Hat ran aground on Hope Island yesterday as fog patches blanketed the British Columbia coast and Northern Vancouver Island.

B.C. Packers, owners of the 30-ton craft, reported here its crew had been taken off safely and is now quartered at Bull Harbor. Number of men aboard and details of the grounding were not known.

Elsewhere, craft scurried for mooring as density of the fog increased. Vancouver police launch searched English Bay waters for an unidentified small boat reported awash near Point Atkinson.

"PINKS" SAVE DAY

Southeastern Alaska's pink salmon kept the territory this year from having the poorest fishing in its history, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service said yesterday.

The agency said the Southeastern Alaska pack was surprising but gratifying [illegible] 2,400,000 cases compared with last year's 1,275,000, a five-year average of 1,465,000 and the [illegible] year over the [illegible] 4,000,000-case pack of 1941.

By contrast, the valuable red salmon pack of Bristol Bay, in some years among the largest in Alaska, this year was only 524,000 cases, compared with 1,236,000 last year.

The total pack for Alaska, said Howard Baltso, acting chief of Alaska [illegible] for the Fish and Wildlife Service, was 4,250,000 cases. The record low for recent years were the [illegible] less than 4,000,000-case pack of 1946 and 1948.

The good run in Southeastern Alaska was due in part to the severe limits on fishing imposed in 1947, shortening the season to permit great escapement of spawning salmon, Baltso told a reporter.

Want Lights For Airport Near Nanaimo

From Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—Major-General George R. Pearkes, V.C., conferred today with Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier urging the immediate provision of lighting facilities at the Cassidy airport, near Nanaimo.

Mr. Chevrier promised to take up the question with his departmental officers.

The volume of traffic between this airport and Vancouver, serviced by the Queen Charlotte Air Lines Limited, had increased considerably during the Summer when at least five scheduled flights were maintained each day, the Nanaimo member emphasized at his meeting with the transport minister. With the termination of daylight saving time General Pearkes stated unless lighting facilities were installed at the Cassidy airport, operations would be severely handicapped.

Meeting of Club Set at Parksville

PARKSVILLE, Sept. 24—Annual meeting of the Qualicum-Parksville District Canadian Club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. Morgan, Qualicum Beach, on October 5. Guest speaker at the next regular meeting, October 18, will be Col. C. W. Devey on "Canada's Defence Policy."

Greatest Changes in Britain Forecast in Next Few Years

PARKSVILLE, Sept. 24. — Al-1 though the next three or four years will probably bring the greatest changes of all times to Great Britain, and some not for the better, Elmore Philpott, news commentator, is confident the indomitable spirit of the British will bring them through.

One outstanding feature noted in a recent trip to England Mr. Philpott stated was the wonderful spirit of sharing that has arisen from the war and subsequent years of hardship. Although the diets are far from adequate the poorer classes are much better fed than in the old days and every effort is made to provide all children with foods necessary for their health.

Devaluation of the pound was bound to be hard on the morale of a people which has taken so much hardship in its stride, particularly in the face of repeated denials on the part of Sir Stafford Cripps that he would take such a step.

Speaking of his tour of Europe Mr. Philpott said he returned from there with a much more optimistic outlook on peace, since there is little talk of imminence of a third world war on the other side of the Atlantic. Everyone is much too busy trying to recover from the last conflict and endeavoring to make a living, he said.

One point he noticed is a great fear of Russia especially in France. Although [illegible] damaged France is still full of [illegible] he said. There is a building boom in Belgium and [illegible] where [illegible] are very [illegible].

Although the [illegible] spirit is very [illegible] in Germany, he did not think many [illegible] Nazi [illegible].

Why Do We Get Tired?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Sitting on the Fence

By Nathaniel Gubbins

* * *

There are plenty of low specimens in this country reeling about the pavements singing, but this does not mean they are the only people in the country who are drunk. There are thousands of others, but they are not noticeable.

Americans often complain that the English are cold and reserved. They attempt a conversation in a bar with an Englishman who does not reply.

As most Englishmen of the high [illegible] distinct from the low type behave in this way towards foreigners, an American may ask: "Are they all drunk, then?"

The answer is: Yes.

LANGUAGE

Few is the operative word here.

If an American meets nobody but those included in the type described above picking up a few words will be the work of a lifetime.

As the English are [illegible]

The couple of words will be [illegible] which mean Yes and No [illegible]

It might be supposed that a man so handicapped would be [illegible] to reply in monosyllables, leaving out the redundant word "actually."

But this is not the English way. The English way is the hard way. As an American writer has already pointed out, even the bedside lamp-switches in some British hotels are placed in such a position that you have to get out of bed to switch them off.

Having got so far in social intercourse with the English and acquired his limited knowledge of the local patois, the American can then spend a [illegible]

CUSTOMS

It lasts many days in the hope of arriving at a result, but this rarely happens unless they go on playing in what were once known as timeless Tests.

In cricket, timeless does not mean world without end. It means enough time for 20 batsmen to be bowled, caught, stumped [illegible] out twice or until such time when [illegible] will be asked to leave the game.

CRICKET

[illegible]

For instance, although a bowler may bowl all day without taking a wicket, this is roughly how each ball is described by an Englishman working himself up into a state of [illegible]

"A is going to bowl to B. He is walking back now to measure [illegible] And HE BOWLS."

Hill Figures Of Britain

The chalky turf-covered hills of Southern England have been decorated by Englishmen of past centuries with white horses formed by cutting away the grass and revealing the chalk beneath. These white horses are mostly found in Wiltshire and Geoffrey Grigson, who lives there himself, gave an interesting B.B.C. talk about them. "The practice of cutting out a white horse on a hillside has been termed 'leucippotomy'—a wonderful word that Grigson rolled round his tongue with relish. But how much is known about these prancing figures that can be seen from miles away by those on the ground whilst from the air they stand out even more boldly and vigorously on the green hills?

* * *

The average person knows little about the site and origin of Britain's white horses and ploughmen on the Wiltshire Downs recently revealed a forgotten white horse which had been grown over. There are three Wiltshire white horses cut in the last quarter of the 18th century; the others were mostly created in the early years of the 19th century. HEADS OF CABBAGE STORED ON SHELF
TURN HEADS UPSIDE DOWN TO DRAIN OUT WATER

Ways of Storing Cabbage

CABBAGES are sometimes harder to store than they are to grow. There are, however, several methods of storing them for Winter use, one of which is apt to be practical for the average home gardener.

They can be stored in a cellar with a concrete floor, but in such case it is best to place a layer of sand two inches deep over the floor. Then trim away the heavy base leaves of each cabbage, and leave one or two inches of stem on the heads.

The trick is to pile up the cabbages in pyramid form. Start with eight heads laid on the layer of sand and build the pile seven to eight heads high. Draw each layer inward until the pyramid is reached.

Another method of storing calls for laying heads of cabbage in rows on shelves in an outdoor cellar, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This method can be used in the basement of a dwelling, but the odor of the cabbages is likely to penetrate throughout the house.

Cabbages are difficult to keep inside in the average basement as they require low temperatures and air circulation. A moist atmosphere is best for safe storage.

One practical method of storing a small supply of late cabbages is to pull the plants, roots and all, and place them in a long pit outdoors with heads down. Then cover the pit with earth and straw. Slight freezing will not injure them.

Pre-Pared Potatoes Popular Secret Solution Used

"PRE-PARED" potatoes made front-page headlines recently. Claude Miller, president of Miller's Pre-Pared Potato Company of Blue Island, Illinois, says that the use of a secret treating solution, colorless, tasteless and harmless, will keep pared potatoes from discoloring or deteriorating for several days at room temperature. They keep longer if refrigerated.

This new business in Chicago has been in development for more than a year. Initial sales have been confined to restaurants and hotels where cost cuts of 25 to 30 per cent are reported to result from use of the pre-pared product.

"In Chicago restaurants unpeeled potatoes were handled eight times from the time they arrived until they were placed in the cooking pot. The peeled potatoes require only two handlings. They've been a tremendous labor saver for us," reports Vice-President Martin J. Harding.

Another Chicago restaurant chain uses 3,000 pounds of peeled potatoes a day where it formerly had to handle 4,000 pounds of unpeeled potatoes to get the same quantity for eating. Time and restaurant labor are saved, refuse handling is eliminated and kitchen food costs are more easily figured.

TEST OF SALES

"Earlier this year the company tested the sale of unpeeled potatoes to the housewife. The spuds were treated and put up in five-pound moisture-proof bags selling for 39 cents. At that time comparable unpeeled potatoes were selling at ten pounds for 69 cents. Housewives were given a guarantee: If one potato spoiled within a week, it was to be returned and another five pounds received free. In a six weeks test, no potatoes were returned and all those offered were sold.

RIGID INSPECTION

"Potatoes are prepared for restaurateurs in the one-story plant on Chicago's South Side. They're peeled, washed, inspected, passed through the treating solution, and packed in moisture-proof bags. Delivery is made in non-refrigerated trucks.

"Every carload is scientifically tested for cooking quality before use. Proper varieties are selected for each particular need, so restaurants get a guaranteed product whether they want them for boiling, washing, hash brown or French fries. Selecting the right kind of potatoes has always been a major problem with both restaurant operator and the housewife," declared Mr. Miller.

School Lunch Vital Problem

One of the most important items of the Fall school opening, and one of the countless worries it brings to the homemaker, is the preparation of school lunches. Not only do the lunch-toters demand variety, but they must also have nutritious food.

The Consumers Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture suggests each school lunch contain milk; some meat, fish, eggs, dried beans or peanut butter; a vegetable or fruit, or both; breads, fats, or sweets to round it out.

If the school child cannot buy milk at school or where lunch is eaten, include it as milk, soup or cocoa in the thermos. The home economists of the department suggest milk in puddings can be taken along in small mayonnaise jars or waxed paper containers, but be sure the lid is on tight.

To handle the demand for variety, produce odd designs in sandwiches—cut them with cookie cutters or like jigsaw puzzles. Try a new filler once in a while.

Gardening Hints

Narcissus bulbs are best planted in September. If beds of naturalized bulbs have become overcrowded they may be dug up and replanted, if not kept out of the ground longer than necessary.

* * *

Hemlocks, firs, pines, spruces and yews may be moved now if lifted with large solid balls of earth. These plants should be watered, mulched and staked after transplanting.

Habits of Cabbage Root Maggots

* * * * * *

Little White Pest Causing Serious Losses to Farmers

By M. H. RUHMANN

THERE are few insects attacking vegetables which cause greater loss and disappointment than the one which as a small white maggot is found infesting the roots of cabbages, cauliflowers, rape, turnips and radishes.

During early Spring and Summer, in the seed bed and in the permanent plantation, the leaves of certain cabbage and cauliflower plants frequently turn yellow, wilt and droop. If an examination is made of the roots a number of maggots, varying in size but attaining the length of 1/3 inch, will be found embedded beneath a slimy mass of decaying vegetation and soil. With radishes and turnips similar white maggots will be found in borrows or galleries in the edible portion of the roots.

RESEMBLE HOUSE-FLY

The adults which produce these maggots are small flies resembling the ordinary house-fly in general appearance, but more slender and slightly smaller. They appear on the wing in very early Spring, having developed from overwintering puparia in the soil. They lay eggs on or near the crown of the plant on the level of the soil surface.

These eggs hatch in five to seven days into small larvae or maggots, which penetrate the soil and attach themselves to the roots of the plant. Here the larvae remain feeding and destroying the roots for from 19 to 32 days.

It must be understood that all of the adult flies do not emerge from the soil in the Spring at the same time. The process of emergence may be continued for over a month. As each female emerges she mates and proceeds at once to lay eggs. Thus we find a continuous and overlapping series of stages in existence as may be possible. It can be seen for the larvae, which have developed from flies which emerge the earliest, to be nearly mature at the time the latest flies are emerging from the soil. This complex and difficult situation proceeds throughout the year, and results in the fact that some eggs are being laid every day from April until September. This point must be clearly borne in mind, as upon it is based one of the essential features of satisfactory control.

THE NESTING STAGE

When the larvae become full grown they form what is known as puparia, a stage in their life-history which corresponds to the chrysalis of a butterfly. The puparia of this fly resembles grains of wheat in size and color, and may be found in decaying roots or in the soil adjacent to infested plants. From two to three weeks are passed in this stage during the Summer months, but towards Autumn the stage is lengthened out and the Winter is passed in this form. The puparium stage is merely a resting stage from which eventually the adult flies emerge, and, as can be realized, this emergence of adults may be more or less a continuous process throughout the Summer months.

Peonies Move Best in September

SEPTEMBER is the best month to divide and transplant peonies, but they should not be moved more often than once in five years, unless there is special reason for doing so. Choose a fine day for digging up the plants and take care not to damage the roots, which in a large plant may go down a foot or more. The leaves of the plant should be cut off before starting to dig and the loose earth removed from the roots which should be exposed to the air for a few hours. Wash off all the soil with water.

Examine the root carefully to see where it can be divided with as little damage to the tuber as possible. A very large clump can be divided by forcing a digging fork down into the centre, but smaller ones can be forced apart by hand. Each division must consist of a tuber with two or three eyes, but divisions with six or seven eyes are better for the average gardener.

Before planting, the ground should be well dug and if possible some well rotted manure added and well mixed in. The root should be placed so that there is about two inches of soil above the crown. Too deep planting is frequently the cause of peonies not blooming. A mulch should be put on the first year after the ground has frozen, but when the plants are well established no mulch is necessary. The leaves should be cut back each Fall and burned in order to destroy any disease germs which may be present.

Peonies, bleeding hearts, irises, Oriental poppies and lilies of the valley are dormont now and may be moved easily.

* * *

Lawns, strawberry beds, rock gardens and similar areas should be weeded at this time to remove all perennial weeds.

* * *

Gladiolas and other Summer-flowering bulbs or corms may be lifted and prepared for Winter storage as fast as their leaves turn yellow.

~ MADONNA LILIES ~

- Nothing else so white, so sweet, so pure -

"HAVE YOU WALKED IN THAT WONDERFUL GARDEN
WHERE UNSELFISHNESS BLOOMS AS A ROSE,
AND CONTENT IS THE SWEETEST OF BORDERS,
WHERE THE LILY OF PEACEFULNESS GROWS?"
— H. M. COBB

·· LILIUM CANDIDUM ··

The Madonna Lily (Lilium Candidum) has an origin extending to the very earliest times, but its precise nativity is unknown. The ancient Greeks often used the Madonna Lily as a motif in the sculpture of vases.

Madonna Lilies are very fragrant and entrancing and are best planted in early September. Buy good bulbs from a reliable supplier, and plant about two inches deep. The growth of this bulb is remarkable and when established, its evergreen leaves will defy the winter. Fall planting for all lilies is preferable to spring.

Established bulbs of this lily will grow three to four feet high with six or more blooms on each stem. They bloom with delphiniums and roses during June and July.

Shipping Is Key to Communist World Drive

* * * * * *

Failure to Incite Men Aboard Vessels Forces Reds to Start Action on Docks

By IAN BAKER

LONDON. — Winston Churchill once said that while the British were "sea animals" the Russians were "land animals" and the difference was the cause of wartime misunderstandings between the two countries.

The alignments of power since the war have given a new significance to the Churchillian phrase. The merchant fleets of the world are almost entirely in the hands of the western powers with Britain emerging as the largest builder and operator of them all.

DEPENDS ON FLEET

Britain is entirely dependent on its merchant fleet for the standard of living of its people. Without a free flow of shipping in and out of all the great ports of the world this country would soon be reduced to actual starvation. To a lesser, but important degree all the other powers of the West rely on the great numerical strength of Britain's merchant navy and its marvellous efficiency to keep up their living standards. The Marshall Plan itself could not be carried through without British shipping, nor could the export programs of a dozen countries.

IN FERTILE GROUND

Communist infiltration into the British merchant navy has been on a small scale in the past. The sailor, whose life is as arduous, monotonous and uncomfortable as that of any worker in any industry, and more so than most, has always provided the most unfertile ground for propaganda. That the Communists have been making great efforts to alter this state of affairs, however, is shown by the statement of Mr. Tom Yates, general secretary of the National Union of Seamen at the last annual meeting.

"We have evidence in our own union of Communist mischief making," he said. "disloyal activities will hereafter be dealt with constitutionally by our executive council.

"Unofficial stoppages will not be condoned or countenanced by this union in any circumstances."

TAKE STERN MEASURES

The union has decided that any man spreading subversive Communist propaganda among seamen with a view to causing an unofficial strike will be expelled from the union, which will automatically mean that he is debarred from sailing in the ships of most British companies. There is, therefore, a safeguard against a man joining a ship merely for the purpose of causing trouble among the crew, as has happened in the case of the Canadian ships in the London docks dispute.

But the Communists have other weapons that they are using at the present moment in many countries of the world. "When the revolutionary tide is not rising, the Communist parties must advance partial slogans and demands that correspond to the everyday needs of the toilers . . ." is one of the basic principles of Communist strategy. It means that strikes and other disturbances must be fomented which are represented not as being for revolutionary ends but merely for purely trade union purposes — for protecting or improving wages and conditions and stopping blacklegs.

And that is why the London dockers went on strike recently. The "sea animal's" weak point is on the land. It is then possible to have the strange situation of British trade unionists on strike in support of a claim made by man, who though he claims to be a member of the Canadian Seaman's Union, is actually not a sailor and has in fact never previously been to sea before the present trip.

TURN TO DOCKERS

But this all shows in what direction the Communists of Britain, and of other countries, are working. They have been repulsed by the traditionally loyal seaman whose life is necessarily wrapped up with the essentials of discipline and the team spirit that a ship can bring out like no other organization in the world; so they have turned to the one means by which they can prevent the ships from sailing—the halting of port work everywhere.

The pattern has been seen in many parts of the world. The Australian dockers stop work at the least provocation and at regular intervals. The Communists there used the situation to support the revolutionary situation in Indonesia by refusing to handle ships manned by perfectly democratic Dutch seamen who are trade unionists themselves. They have done the same in French ports where ships have been loading for Indo-China; they have stopped the importation of essential supplies into Italy for the rehabilitation of that country.

IN FAR-OFF CHINA

Only in China itself is there any change of method. There the Communists recognise that without the supplies that can be brought in by sea large urban populations must soon starve. Russia cannot help Mao Tse-Tung because the Russian merchant fleet is a negligible quantity. So the hand of friendship is thrown out to the British and American ships and it is then the nationalist forces who attempt to blockade the China ports to prevent those ships entering harbor.

It would be unwise for the nation to believe that a body of men who have never shown any liking for Communism cannot be led away from democracy. The conditions of life of the average sailor are bad, though it is true efforts are being made by most ship owners to improve them. The sailor has long months away from home, long hours of work—how many industrial workers would tolerate a system by which they worked four hours on and four hours off all round the clock? Their job is dangerous and the incidence of death and injury is higher than in any other calling. One would think that there is fertile soil here for the Communist seed.

DANGER IS SEEN

Somehow the danger must be ruled out before it can grow. It is significant that few unofficial stoppages aboard British ships are ever led by members of the deckhands. It is more difficult for a man who has not real experience of the sea to sign on as a seaman than it is for him to become, say, a steward.

In the old days the sailor, the actual bridge and deck worker, was a man apart from the rest of the crew, a man who looked upon himself as a skilled worker whose skill had been learned over many bitter years of experience. That this pride has been allowed to lapse in the past few years is the fault of the shipowners themselves. They should now take the most energetic steps, in collaboration with the National Seamen's Union, to ensure that the pride of calling is brought back.

The recent trouble aboard the Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary was one warning. The one-day strike of Australian seamen was another. This latest dock strike in England is a third.

Granite Cairn on Gonzales Hill Marks Explorations of Channel

By TREVOR COLLINS

ABOVE PICTURE shows cairn erected on Gonzales Hill, Oak Bay. It is built of granite and stands on the highest point of the hill overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

A QUIET sentinel stands on the wind-swept peak of Gonzales Hill, Oak Bay, commemorating the voyages of the early explorers and fur traders who sailed the waters in and around Vancouver Island.

The metal plaque set in the granite near the base of the stone pyramid tells a story that reads like modern fiction. It is an official landmark, erected by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board in memory of the exploration of the Strait of Juan de Fuca from 1787 to 1792.

According to the inscription on the plaque, the strait was discovered by Captain Charles William Barkley in 1787 while on a fur trading expedition to the Pacific Northwest. The voyage of his ship, the Imperial Eagle, began at Ostend, in Holland. With the captain was his bride, Frances Hornby Barkley, the first white woman to visit the Pacific Northwest.

Commander John Meares, Royal Navy, entered the strait in 1788, to be followed the next year by Robert Grey.

Sub-Lieutenant Manuel Quimper, commanding the Spanish exploring sloop Princess Royal arrived in the strait in 1790. Gonzales Lopez de Haro sailed in the sloop as first mate and they set out to explore Juan de Fuca.

Gonzales Point and Haro Strait were named after the first mate by Commander Quimper. On the same cruise the Princess Royal anchored in what is now known as Esquimalt Harbor. Quimper named it Puerto de Cordova.

The Spanish Navy sent another ship to explore the Gulf of Georgia in 1791 in command of Lieutenant Francisco Elisa. Captain George Vancouver, Royal Navy, and Commander Dionisia Alcala Galiano and Cayateno Valdez, Spanish Navy, followed in 1792.

ONE OF THE most substantial business blocks in the Chinatown section of Victoria at the end of the nineteenth century and the beginning of this one was the De Cosmos block. The founder of The Colonist was a heavy investor in that part of the city, where his property interests were looked after by his brother, McKay Smith. Part of it is now included in the "Mac & Mac" establishment. Nova Scotian Armor De Cosmos, who was one of the most ardent advocates of Confederation when the fight was at its bitterest and did much to bring union about, also served in the local Legislature, the House of Commons, and for a time was Premier of British Columbia, had great faith in the city of his adoption, making it his home after many adventures in covered wagon days when he crossed the plains and spent some time in Utah and California before arriving here, where he was to do so much for the advancement of British Columbia.

Blood Factor Test Developed

* * *

Bovine Albumin Now Being Used

THE risks a prospective mother runs of the death or imbecility of her baby, have been reduced greatly by a newly-developed and inexpensive Rh blood factor test.

In 1940, it was established that about 85 per cent of human beings carry a substance in their blood known as the Rh factor. The remaining 15 per cent lack it.

The lack is not a deficiency. It is merely a normal, inherited characteristic, like blue eyes or red hair.

The two types of blood, Rh positive and Rh negative, are incompatible. When they are mixed, either through a blood transfusion or when the unborn baby's blood inherited from the father is different from that of the mother's, the Rh negative blood produces an antibody to destroy the Rh positive blood.

EXPLAINS IMMUNITIES

The antibody remains permanently in the blood in most cases. The same process applies to germs of disease and explains why immunity against typhoid or mumps lasts throughout life. It also applies to incompatible blood.

It has been estimated that 13 per cent of all marriages bring together the required Rh negative wife and the Rh positive husband. But of all their possible children, half are likely to inherit the mother's blood type rather than the father's, in which cases there is no danger.

In December, 1947, Dr. Louis K. Diamond, of Boston, Mass., discovered that many Rh blood-matching tests were inaccurate. But the use of albumin in the test eliminates false results.

ANIMAL BLOOD CHEAPER

If the red cells of the patient's blood begin to stick together under the microscope, the bloods are incompatible and the character of the patient's blood is thus established.

Human albumin also can be used in the test, but it is very expensive. The bovine albumin used in one test costs about five cents.

The albumin test is important for all prospective parents or for those who need blood transfusions. Approximately 10,000 births a year involve the Rh factor.

If the condition is not known or prepared for, it may result in abortion or stillbirth, death or imbecility for the baby involved.

Attempts are now being made to find a drug which will destroy safely the Rh antibodies in the mother

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS

IF you've wondered why some girls don't have dates—or as many dates as they'd like—here's one reason . . . explained in a letter from a college sophomore in the late 'teens.

"I will come directly to the point," he writes. "I am one of the male sex, going on 19. I have just completed my first year at college. I do not know whether I have a 'problem,' but it troubles me.

"I have been going with a girl two years younger than I for about three months. Every time I see her, I have to take her out. The money situation isn't too good. I think if I could possibly say the right thing to her, we could have a house date or go for a walk, etc. Could you help me?

"I like this girl—well, a great deal. I do not go out with other girls. You see when I am attracted to a girl, I date her consistently, as this one. Could you help me?"

Ans.—It isn't fair for any girl to expect a high school or college student to take her places every time they see each other—it's just too expensive. If she really liked you, she'd suggest a house date or walk regularly and would think it was fun to make sandwiches for a picnic.

You could (1) suggest a walk, (2) ask if you could come to see her at her home or (3) explain the situation frankly, explaining that, in order to see her regularly as you like to, you two will have to get together occasionally on plans for house dates, walks, etc. You can tell by her reply what kind of girl she is and whether she really likes you.

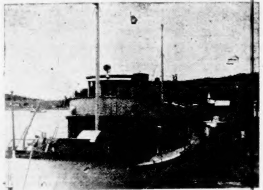
Lack of Facilities for Boats Hampers Many Cruising Parties

By JOHN C. BOHLE

A VISITOR from the United States catches Cohoe on Quatsino Sound, Vancouver Island. Dad Jordan, St. Helen, Oregon, hopes to catch another while Charlie Brooks of the Port Alice Fish and Gun Club exhibits the catch.



AMERICAN YACHT CANIM of Seattle pauses at Alert Bay after cruising to Alaska. Smaller vessel in background is the Pixie of St. Helen Ore. Pixie spent two months in Vancouver Island waters.

SEA-GOING American tourist trade is increasing each year. Visiting good neighbors bring thousands of dollars annually to British Columbia and return home to act as unpaid publicity agents. The inland waterway between Vancouver Island and the Mainland is their favorite cruising ground but they are appearing on the West Coast of the Island.

Unsung heroes are the marine service stations and small store operators who supply fuel, food and information on local conditions. Except in Victoria, Vancouver and Nanaimo there are no yacht clubs or organized information bureaus. Three basic needs are supplied freely by the stations. They are floats or wharfs, fresh water and telephone connections to local and outside points.

FOR THE FISHING

Fishing is perhaps the main attraction, with salmon taking first place in popularity. Many American vessels fish the early runs in Canadian waters, returning to points near the Columbia for the late season.

Creek, river and lake trout, famous for their fighting ability, draw fishermen from many points. Waters in remote areas, teeming with fish, are accessible to the men afloat but not to the motorist.

The yachts may bring to Canada only three days' supplies of food. The average boat is between 40 and 50 feet long and carries five people. This type of craft bring an estimated $1,000 per month of American currency to Canada.

FOOD AND REPAIRS

Americans find Canadian food prices lower than at home. Tiring of the sea, many yachtsmen eat ashore or take land trips to break the monotony. The payroll of guides and repair establishments is a further financial contribution to Canadian economy.

Most repair jobs are minor motor adjustments. One Portland yachtsman left singing the praises of a Nanaimo mechanic who overhauled his engine when it broke down. Cost for material and labor $802.

The Stars and Stripes dominate at many points during the main salmon runs. All types of vessels from the 110-foot De Etta, of Portland, with two 1,800 h.p. power Diesels, to the 16-foot open speedboat La-Go-Ma, of Seattle, were observed during the season.

Ken Rogers, commandant of the Portland Coast Guard Auxiliary, had a party of ten aboard the De Etta. The former U.S. subchaser can cruise on one engine, giving a speed of 12½ knots on a fuel consumption of 20 gallons per hour.

Many of the Americans have made annual trips to Canadian waters. Among the number is Milton B. Henderson, whose Evening Star is seen in coastal waters each year. He is one of an estimated 40 Portland Yacht Club vessels cruising British Columbia waters in July and August.

FROM SEATTLE

Seattle yachtsmen cruised waters from Puget Sound and Johnstone Straits to Knight Inlet. Perhaps the best known was Lloyd Vosper, author and printer of the popular set of book charts, "Cruising Puget Sound and Adjacent Waters." He is gathering data for a companion book covering Northern British Columbia waters. His boat, the Dutch Maid, was cruising tandem with the Friendship, owned by Walter Lembke.

Motor vessels did not steal the whole show. Sailing vessels with their trim lines and snowy sails are sometimes seen. The Katie Ford of Portland and the Suva of Seattle were among those cruising off Campbell River. The cutter Nimbus of Seattle and the youth training vessel Gracie S. were observed on both the East and West Coasts of Vancouver Island in July.

FROM PORTLAND

Among the motor vessels from Portland were the following vessels and owners: Phantom, S. S. Wilcox; Toby, Frank Phillips; Valpenade, Dr. Ben Shadler; Cabu, John Sprouse; Coho, Stewart Ball; France, Bern Gooley; Nirvana, Vern Cartwright; Tonga, A. Cook; Cede, Jerry Dunmic; Cimba, Dolph Trachi; Pixie, Harvey Jordan. The last-named spent six weeks on Barclay and Clayuquot Sounds before cruising around the north tip of the Island. Pixie's home port is St. Helens, Ore.

The fishing season was late this year with lower than average catches until late in July. Weather was fair on the average and most owners are planning return trips for 1950.

FACILITIES LACKING

Americans agree that Canadian hospitality is tops. They like the people. A publicity campaing directed at the sea-going Americans might increase the number coming to Canada. A few additional facilities could make their visit more enjoyable.

An example of lack of proper facilities for visiting yachtsmen is the town of Campbell River. They have only one small float capable of comfortably accommodating four or five small vessels. Fishermen tie up there regularly and boats are often five or six deep. Strong currents and the height of wharfs make it difficult to get on or off the boats or load supplies. There is no water at the old wharf and no float at the oil supply station on the new Government wharf. Telephone on one wharf is only available when the freight shed is open. Most boats cross to the cannery town of Quathiaska for the night. The new breakwater at Campbell River was completed this year but to date there are no floats and the water is shallow at low tide.

POPULAR MUSIC

METRO-Goldwyn-Mayer records has turned out another excellent album recorded from a movie sound track. This time it is the music from "Madame Bovary," conducted by Miklos Rozsa. Three fine numbers are included in the two-record album, "Madame Bovary's Waltz," "Prelude and Romance" and "Torrent and Passepied."

Vaughn Monroe, who more or less specializes in old-fashioned melodies, does a good job for RCA Victor in his new "Silver Lining" album of six numbers from the new Warner Brothers' movie of the life of songstress Marilyn Miller. Monroe sings to his orchestra's accompaniment such favorites as "Look for the Silver Lining," "Shine On Harvest Moon," "Avalon," "Who?" and "A Kiss in the Dark."

The guitar strumming and ballad singing of Burl Ives have never been better than in the new four-record Columbia album, "The Return of the Wayfaring Stranger." Included in this collection are "On Springfield Mountain," "The Devil and the Farmer," "Lord Randal" and "Bonnie Wee Lassie."

New singles:

"Circus," a new piece by Bob Russell, the writer of "Brazil," sung in great style by Tony Martin (Victor) . . . Art Mooney may have spawned another big-time hit with a new arrangement of the oldie, "Wouldn't It Be Fun" (M-G-M) . . .

That maker of hits, Nat "King" Cole, sings out with the tuneful "Who Do You Know in Heaven" (Capitol) . . . Johnny Desmond has a new number about that wartime myth, Lili Marlene. The tune, straight from England where it is leading the British hit parade, is a sentimental ditty titled "The Wedding of Lili Marlene" (M-G-M) . . .

Sentimental Buddy Clark has two new good ones for his fans with "Song of Surrender" and "You're Breaking My Heart" (Columbia) . . . Erskine Hawkins' band tells about "The Buffalo Nickel" and all the things it still can buy (Victor).

Jet Plane Climbs Like Rocket

LONDON.—Two announcements made during the period of the tenth S.B.A.C. Flying Display and Exhibition, held at Farnborough early in September, disclosed that those who wish to challenge Great Britain's lead in gas-turbine aero-engineering must now set their sights on still more difficult targets. One statement revealed that the Rolls-Royce Avon axial-flow turbo-jet engine is already giving 7,500 pound static thrust; the other that British jet-pipe re-heat equipment increases the power of a turbojet engine by as much as 50 per cent.

SUSTAINED CLIMBS

Astute observers who had seen the flying at Farnborough could hardly have been surprised to learn the power of the Avon. They had watched the twin-engined Avon-powered Canberra bomber throw dignity to the winds and fly with the verve, dash and agility of a fighter, holding long sustained climbs and rounding them off with slow rolls that made the knowledgeable gasp with astonishment. Even the sleek Canberra could not have flown in this fashion had it been unable to command power far beyond that available from an engine with a rating no higher than that of engines whose performance had been made known earlier.

LIKE A ROCKET

Later in the program came the Avon-Meteor with its phenomenally fast climb of 40,000 feet in a fraction over four minutes. A year ago a Beryl-engined Meteor had climbed to 40,000 feet in seven and one-half minutes—an average of one mile a minute—and its performance had been hailed as little short of miraculous. Now, the time to the same height has been almost halved and the advantage of the jet bomber whittled down still more. Spectators at Farnborough saw this new instrument of interception travel skywards in an ascent as vertical as a rocket's until it was nothing but "a mere speck in a blue vault."

Hollywood

By PATRICIA CLARY

HOLLYWOOD.—The six months Ella Raines has been in England away from Hollywood cameras haven't changed her much. She still likes to do things differently.

Most of the Hollywood honeys have chopped their locks off to Dutch boy bobs while Ella's been gone. But she still wears her hair long and loose.

"My husband likes it that way," she said. "That's good enough for me."

Most other Hollywood players seek British screen jobs, but Miss Raines has turned them down. She skipped three London film offers to fly to Hollywood to star in R.K.O. Radio's "The Bail Bond Story."

"I love Hollywood," she sighed. "But I love my husband more, so I'm going right back to be with him until he can come home."

Her husband, Major Robin Olds, is a United States flyer attached to the Royal Air Force. They have a country house outside London, where they play lots of tennis on lawn courts.

GRASS CUSHIONS FALLS

"You don't bruise so easily when you fall on grass," Miss Raines observed. Ella would be playing tennis still if it hadn't been for the hurry-up call from R.K.O. Six hours later she was on a plane for Hollywood.

"I'm living with my folks," she added. "We rented our house to Lynn Bari."

Miss Raines and her husband return to Hollywood for good next Fall, bringing two potential United States citizens with them. They are Robert and Simone Pothier, a French couple who joined the Olds menage as butler and cook.

On her brief stay in Hollywood, Miss Raines made the most of the well-spread tables.

"You get little but fowl in London—woodcocks, pheasants and ducks," she said. "I've eaten so much duck I've grown feathers."

The best thing about returning, she added, was realizing she was remembered.

"Six months," she said is a long time out of circulation in Hollywood."

Robert Mitchum said he was fighting a losing battle for screen recognition against an eagle, three seals, a St. Bernard, two ravens, a squirrel and an outsized suit of Winter underwear.

"Who's going to watch me," he growled, "while that menagerie is in action?"

The wildlife, and the massive union suit, share scenes with Mitchum in R.K.O. Radio's "Christmas Gift," his first crack at screen comedy.

"I'm not used to competition like that," he said. "That squirrel alone grabs more attention than a tent-show soubrette. It has a personality like Billy Sunday and it can find more things to do with a sack of peanuts than a five-year-old at a three-ring circus."

And speaking of five-year-olds, Mitchum in the movie also battles a seven-year-old.

"Birds and beasts are bad enough," he said, "but when you add a kid actor with two front teeth missing and a beautiful leading lady, then the leading man might just as well be behind the door."

"Now I know why W. C. Fields hated child actors," Mitchum said. "This is Gordon's first picture, but he can laugh and cry on cue, he invents his own stage business and he can ab-lib me right out of the scene.

"He acts like he's paying no attention, and then he goes into a scene and makes you look like you should have stayed at Lockheed."

BOOKS

By W. T. GALT

If the literary year, 1949, is memorable for no other reason it could be chalked up as a year of anniversaries.

Of course there's nothing new about a literary clambake in honor of the anniversary of the birth or death of a great author.

In fact Burns' birthday is used as the annual excuse for a hoedown by a good many celebrants who don't read a line of his poetry from one year to the next.

But if corresponding gatherings of what are getting to be known as literary luminaries are no more unusual they at least seem to be getting a better press this year in the bookish journals.

DIGEST TREND

Biggest coverage of the top-level intellectual powwows staged so far this year goes to the Goethe festival at Colorado in honor of the poet's 200th birthday.

The college professors and other luminaries (who apparently know both good Goethe and free advertising when they see it) don't seem to have been taken by surprise by the anniversary.

As a result it is a rare publisher's catalogue this year that doesn't have a page or so devoted to listing books that set out "a new estimate" of the great poet.

At best this sort of centennial concentration may cajole a few more impatient modern readers into trying some of the original authors themselves. At worst it is apt to promote the digest trend—letting the critic read the masterpiece and accepting his opinion on it without taking time to sample the original.

ENIGMATIC

Meanwhile the centenary of the death of Edgar Allan Poe, whose short and tragic life ended October 7, 1849, will be celebrated next month.

Whether this will stimulate the same degree of highbrow activity in America as the Goethe anniversary, is doubtful. Poe has always been more highly regarded in France than in his own country.

Yet probably more than any other American author, Poe—as a personality—has appealed to popular imagination. And, if a flood of books on the enigmatic American only awaits the anniversary of his death to be released, they will probably find a wider audience than did those on Goethe.

For as one caustic columnist has remarked, most Americans don't even know how to pronounce Goethe's name.

This year is also the anniversary of many a less-publicized literary landmark.

ALSO RAN

In 1899, Horatio Alger died; Rilke's "Zwei Prager Geschichten" first turned up in the book stalls as did Henry James' "The Awkward Age" and Thorstein Veblen's "Theory of the Leisure Classes."

Just 100 years ago, in 1849, while Matthew Arnold and Henrik Ibsen made their literary debuts, the new books on sale included: "David Copperfield," Tennyson's "In Memoriam," Kingsley's "Alton Locke," Ruskin's "The Seven Lamps of Architecture" and Charlotte Bronte's "Shirley."

And in 1549, a cool 400 years ago, was printed a book that is still read from time to time—the "Book of Common Prayer."

Can Relax and Have Fun With Entertaining Story

"I had always considered Sandy a bit of a liar; and since the evening he told me he had once proposed to Jane Austen I had been thinking a lot about liars."

Especially when we find out that "Sandy," a meek, middle-aged businessman, is living today and the authoress he claims to have proposed to died in 1817.

STARTLING

The somewhat startling explanation given to the narrator by his brother-in-law and business partner "Sandy" is that he is a time traveler who goes back into the past to take over the life of someone who in turn travels into the twentieth century to carry on for him.

Because the story is smoothly and amusingly told and there is a minimum of hocus-pocus to trouble the credulous, the reader can just sit back and watch the fun when the narrator discovers that an eleventh century Byzantine slave dealer, an Assyrian warrior from 2,000 B.C., and a minor-Chinese poet of 300 B.C., have, among countless others, "taken over" Sandy and carried on his domestic and business affairs. Jealous wives and worried psychiatrists who aren't let in on the secret add substantially to the plot.

The author takes a rather bewildering turn for the mystic in order to wind up the plot neatly, but the somewhat disappointing confusion at the end is more than outweighed by the entertaining reading which leads up to it.—M.D.G.

Remarkable Aunt Topaz Quietly Enjoys Herself

"The Innocent Traveler," by Ethel Wilson (Macmillan, $2.75).

Great-great aunt Topaz Edgeworth who died in Vancouver at the age of 100 had many memories of girlhood and spinsterhood in Victorian England and an adventurous old age—50 years of it—in a lusty young country.

So the story of Aunt Topaz, part fact, part fancy, has been gracefully related by Ethel Wilson, authoress of the well-received "Hetty Dorval."

REMARKABLE

Because garrulous Aunt Topaz, although the type who is the central character in humorous family anecdotes, does nothing remarkable except quietly enjoy herself in a manner rather remarkable for a product of the Victorian age, "The Innocent Traveler" concerns itself in general with tracing fortunes of friends, relatives and descendents of the Edgeworth family. Through the Edgeworths the reader is introduced to Otis Skinner, Matthew Arnold and Queen Mary.

"The Innocent Traveler" can be recommended as casual reading for those who like family diaries. There is an irritating tendency, however, for the authoress, in introducing her characters, to predict exactly what is going to happen to them, instead of letting the reader find out for himself in the course of the story. —M.D.G.

Anne Boleyn's Court Life Makes Interesting Novel

"Brief Gaudy Hour," by Margaret Campbell Barnes (Thomas Nelson, $3).

This dramatic historical episode begins when young Anne Boleyn is first called to the court of Henry VIII and ends, of course, with her execution.

It is a credit to Mrs. Barnes' art that she can write about this well-known period in history with a freshness that holds the readers' attention throughout, even rising to the climax that every reader knows is on the way.

Anne Boleyn proves to be all too well characterized in this book and many a male reader will grit his teeth and long to give her a good paddling for her hussiness.

And if there is one weakness in the book it is the assumption that the mighty Henry would stand for her drawn out treatment of tantalization as long as he did.

BITTER HATE

For the other characters, they are sharply drawn. Cardinal Wolsey and the discarded Queen Katharine are particularly aptly portrayed and Anne's bitter hate of them both then her sudden reactions to that hate make good reading.

But best of all is the author's understanding of the Tudor King himself. Too bad she wasn't around in those days. She'd have made the most successful wife of all.—W.T.G.

Reviews in Brief . . .

Here is a bright compilation of scores of comments, most of them by minor contemporaries of Shakespeare, that deal with practically every aspect of life in England as Shakespeare knew it.

Briskly edited with modern spelling used throughout, each section of comments opens with a passage from Shakespeare himself, neatly setting the scene and illustrating in many cases how Shakespeare's thought and phrase so closely resemble those of his contemporaries.

"Antic Hay," by Aldous Huxley (Penguin Books, 39c).

Huxley's unique people wind their tortured and tortuous ways through the pages of this recent Penguin release, which, since its original publication in 1923 has proved one of the author's best-received works.

Although most of the rootless intellectuals living in the Huxley version of a postwar world are not given much hope for happiness at the conclusion of "Antic Hay," the hero, who wears a false beard to prop up his ego, can abandon it when he finally gropes his way to some ideals.

The Odd Corner

Speaking of Canadian authors, Vincent Massey puts a sure finger on the main problem of Canadian writers in his book "On Being Canadian." He writes:

"It has been said that no writer can live by the sale of his books in Canada, and that unless he has other means of livelihood he must seek a wider market.

"This he is most likely to find in the United States, but if our authors have to consider the American field for their product, it is probable that its character will be altered by the fact.

"For this reason it has been said that 'an alien audience has shaped the treatment of Canadian life.'"

Whodunits Go to College in U.S.

If you are one of the millions who dote on mystery stories, westerns and "true romances," you can stop apologizing and muttering sheepishly something about "escape literature."

For the whodunits and others of their ilk are going to college this Fall—to Rutgers University. Furthermore, they are breaking into the ranks of higher education with the recognition of a full college course, bearing the impressive title of "The Literature of Modern Communications."

BRAIN CHILD

The new course, which will analyze the juvenile publications, sports, westerns, mystery stories, historicals, romances and success stories presented over the radio, the motion picture and magazines, will be offered during the sessions at both the New Brunswick and Newark centres of Rutgers.

The course is the brain child of Prof. O. Stuart Demarest, chairman of the English department of the evening divisions of the State University, who feels that the type of reading material covered in the new program is "distinctly American."

DISTINCTLY AMERICAN

"I've felt for a long time that we are producing a culture distinctly American," Demarest said today. "Generations from now, it seems to me, scholars will be studying this force to understand the American mind in a crucial period of our cultural history. What we now think of as negligible stuff may turn out to be the most significant literature of our day.

"Moreover," he continued, "we hope by examining our popular literature to set up standards which will help busy people to get more from their reading and perhaps to increase their critical powers in order to sift out the meaningless trash which vexes American media." —N.A.N.A.

Hearty Enthusiasm Found In Gloucestershire Book

"Gloucestershire," by Kenneth Hare (Ryerson, $4).

The author sails into his subject with such a hearty enthusiasm in this book that his own vigorous personality is left stamped on the reader almost as surely as the country he writes about.

Mr. Hare leaves us in no doubt that he is a lover of the good old days in Merry England, and he lets no chance pass when he can take a hefty verbal wallop at the Puritans, past and present, whom he blames for spoiling it all.

WARM ADMIRER

Gloucestershire is traced from its pre-Stone Age infancy to the present by one of its warmest admirers. Famous battles are refought at Tewkesbury and Stow-on-the-Wold, and the origins and accomplishments of the famed Gloucestershire Regiment are proudly chronicled.

So are the local legends, language peculiarities and great men. The beauty spots of the county are preserved in 49 excellent photographs which seem to reproduce better for English printers than they do for anyone else. The book is one of the "County Book" series.

Cake and Frosting Mixes Make Baking Simpler

* * *

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

CAKE and frosting mixes have made the business of baking vastly simpler.

"You still have to pour the batter in the pan and turn on the oven," one expert commented, "but those are about the only two steps that have not changed."

Now a new way has been developed to turn out fancy frostings, fillings and sauces in a few minutes to top these ready-mix cakes.

By using the new instant pudding mix as an ingredient, the cake toppings can be made without cooking. Two of the fancy toppings developed are an orange whip filling for spice cake and a mocha cream sauce for a devil's food cake.

ORANGE WHIP

Ingredients: 1¾ cups orange juice; 1 cup cold milk; ½ teaspoon grated orange rind and 1 package instant vanilla dessert.

Method: Pour orange juice and milk in large bowl. Add orange rind and instant dessert and whip rapidly with a rotary beater for 30 seconds, or until smooth. Serve with hot gingerbread.

MOCHA CREAM SAUCE

Ingredients: 1 cup cold strong coffee; 1 cup cold milk; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2 teaspoons sugar; 1 package instant vanilla dessert, and ¼ cup cream.

Method: Pour coffee and milk into bowl; add salt, sugar and instant dessert. Whip rapidly with rotary beater 30 seconds, until smooth. Stir in cream. Serve on squares of white cake. Recipe makes 2½ cups of sauce.

For those who prefer to begin their cake baking with sugar and shortening instead of a ready mix, a new recipe for banana crunch cake will cut down preparation time in at least one way. The cake requires no frosting. A banana topping is spread over the cake batter before it's baked.

BANANA CRUNCH CAKE

Ingredients: 1½ cups sifted flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ cup shortening; 1 cup sugar; 2 eggs, separated; ¼ teaspoon almond extract; ½ cup milk, and ½ cup chopped nuts.

For the topping: 3 medium bananas; 2 tablespoons brown sugar; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.

Method: Sift together sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and almond extract. Mix well. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fold in chopped nuts. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Pour batter into greased pan, 8 inches square.

Then top the batter with bananas, sliced lengthwise. Sprinkle with a mixture of brown sugar, cinnamon and butter and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 50 minutes.

A Room for Two Boys

By BETTY LENAHAN

ONE room for two very often presents a problem, particularly when the pair are 'teen-age brothers starting their high school careers. Naturally they each have their own ideas on furnishings and color, and to achieve a happy medium in their room takes considerable planning.

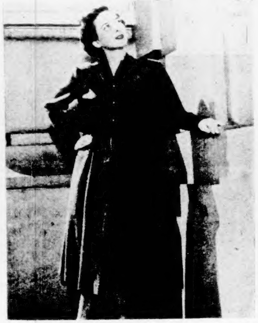
After coordinating their individual likes and dislikes, the next step is to try to create a living-room appearance with all the comforts of a bedroom and hobby-workroom combined. Then, if possible, furnish the room with two of everything. A room thus furnished will eliminate any argument as to possession rights and will serve as the boys' own den where they can read, do their homework, pursue their hobbies and entertain their friends.

Springs and mattresses on legs slipcovered colorfully and durably for daytime lounging and extra seating will serve as comfortable beds at night. In the boys' room illustrated, the couch-beds, to insure some privacy, are in opposite corners of the room, each with a book-shelf end table topped by an adequate reading lamp placed conveniently near. The beds are separated by a useful game table and two slipcovered chairs occupying the space under the wide window.

Twin drawer chests under individual mirrors provide each boy with ample storage space for his personal belongings. The man-size flat-top desks placed back to back occupy very little room and leave extra wall space for other pieces.

The sturdy fabrics, simply designed furniture and clear colors give the room the rugged masculine appearance that every young boy loves.

The white woodwork and the simple white molding framing the windows and pictures highlight the dark hunter green of the walls. The draperies, chair slipcovers and couch cushions are a heavy textured fabric in a grey red and white plaid and the couch covers are a durable corduroy. The tufted rug is beige in a block pattern, the modern furniture is blond mahogany and the game table and chairs are painted white. Further color accents are added by the green, white, golden yellow and red used in the accessories.



THE JERSEY DRESS is all-important, and this one has a one-piece look but is in two pieces. Stephanie Koret of California chooses a new kind of jersey, more "worsted" and less clinging, for this seven-paneled skirt with a gentle flare. The waist-length jacket is elasticized for a whittled waist and tied casually with a half knot. Striped diagonal insets add just the right amount of color contrast and the collar has deep points.

New Patterns in Fabrics Inspiring Dress Fashions

By ANNE YATES CLARKE

BECAUSE clothes are rather simple the fabrics must be interesting this Fall and Winter, or perhaps it is the other way around. The fabric designers have gone to great lengths to give us patterned worsteds, woolens and tweeds that often literally demand the style in which they shall be made. The results are delightful, and within the range of fabric and costume design we have a limitless amount of variety.

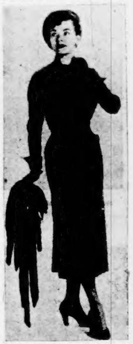
Among the most varied of the worsteds and woolens are fabrics designed for the many and varied silhouettes and costume types. The worsted story begins with clear and striking color combinations such as black, red, elephant grey and white in a beehive design, or nut brown dotted with small white and burnt orange broken checks. These are hard-finished fabrics that will give excellent wear in casual dresses and in suits.

TONE-ON-TONE

There are subtle self-patterned and tone-on-tone worsteds in jacquards and herringbones in such combinations as spice brown and sand or brick and clay. Tweeds are equally colorful and original—crimson and black Scotch plaids, surfaced stripes of bronze and black or luscious combinations of grape, eggshell, pine, shrimp and aqua.

The costume designers have used these materials in ways to emphasize the fabric pattern. Stripes will have a binding about the collar or jacket edges of a suit with the stripes on the bias, or the stripes will be used running two ways, for emphasis and for figure flattery. The selvage is used as edging or binding occasionally, and it takes on the look of a smart separate trimming.

Many fabrics are made to go together. For suits and topcoats a plaid and a plain are favorites this year while the casual sheer wool dress in a plain color frequently takes a jacket or a topcoat in either a heavier weight of the same weave, or an entirely different patterned fabric that is mated through color and texture.



THE FABRIC of this dress suggests its design, as the new Fall fabrics frequently do. It is herringbone worsted in dark brown, mocha and eggshell. The deepest color is repeated in the velvet on the pointed cuffs, and the pattern of the fabric demands the simple treatment of pockets set horizontally on the hips and flared slightly. The skirt has fly front and back fullness which emanates from stitching at the waist.

Campus Shoes for Autumn Following General Trends

TEEN shoes are like anyone else's number tens and shoe designs follow the general fashion trends for Fall. There's a casual feeling about the new footwear that is consistent with the handling of back-to-school tweeds, corduroys and wool jersey separates. Sometimes there's a touch of gaity too in these good low-walking heels for campus. Boots are the real news for girls and there will be plenty of pretty strapped shoes for date wear.

The veteran saddle shoe appears with a multicolored mid-section this season; moccasins turn out with abundant instep straps, Western buckles, soft tongues or high backs to give them a look that spells NOW. Another everyday favorite is the suede ghillie, revived in neat uncomplicated styles.

BOOTS AND BOOTS

Boots for girls; boots for boys. In feminine versions they come in suedes, in strapped or high-backed models. Boys will wear them in polished leathers. Both sexes will like them with their tweeds and chances are the boys will wear them to class with one trouser leg tucked in the top of one boot, the other out. (They are good bait that may eventually turn into date mates.)

Important dates off campus bring out all the pretty feminine clothes that a girl owns. Her shoes should carry through this same feeling and so she will probably choose a strapped style. It can be open, airy, high-heeled and the result will be very flattering. Straps wind about the ankle, sometimes high or they cross the instep in becoming diagonal line. This last is particularly good for the girl whose feet measure larger than size eight.

Colors run from the natural copper rust to promenade brown for casual and classroom classics. Bright tones include cherry red, parkway green, admiral blue and, of course, black for after-hours wear.

Greater Victoria
—City by the Sea

IT'S but a stone's throw from terraced lawns to rocky shores, from golf course to sheltered bays and scenery as old as time blending with the modern arts of man. Greater Victoria, situated on the southern tip of Vancouver Island, has miles of coastline dotted with sandy beaches and tempting coves from the harbor of old Esquimalt to the jutting rock of Ten Mile Point. Palatial homes of The Uplands and Oak Bay fringe the shoreline with a view of the broad Pacific in all its moods. On these pages a Colonist photographer presents a series of pictures of the varying scenery for which Greater Victoria is a city apart from any other.
